MASK AND WIG WILL PRESENT 3-ACT COMEDY

"The Charming Pretender" To Be Staged In School Auditorium, Friday.

PROCEEDS GO TO ATHLETICS

A three-act comedy, "The Charming Pretender," by Charles George, will be presented by the Mask and Wig dramatic club of Gettysburg high school Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium. The play is for the benefit of the athletic association.

A short sketch of the story follows: Years before the play opens, Buchanan Drexel, played by Kermit Harbaugh, a rich aristocratic blue-blood of Boston, has become estranged from his sister because she dared marry a middle-class man whom she loved. Her daughter, Sue Alexander, portrayed by Miss Josephine Codori, has grown to young womanhood without knowing her relatives.

Ever ambitious and reaching beyond her middle-class environment, she decides to visit her rich relatives and posing as the winner of a beauty contest in her native state, Vermont, she arrives at the Drexel home in Boston.

Meets American

She immediately wins the hearts of old Buchanan, now a widower, and his ne'er-do-well son, Steve, enacted by Bentzel Weller, but is disliked from the beginning by her cousin, Eloise, played by Miss Dorothy Meyer, who is jealous of her beautiful nature and charm. At the Drexel home she meets Lord Marshall Kendall, a young Englishman, played by Henry Spahr, who is engaged to Eloise, and a friend of his, Andrew Carmichael, Harold Case, a handsome young American with whom she falls in love.

During the action of the play a jewel robbery takes place, of which the heroine is accused. Many other exciting incidents occur which are vitally important to the plot of the comedy.

Additional characters are: Gladys Joy, a young model, portrayed by Vivien Yohe, and Cavanaugh, the butler, Murray Frazee. Both play important roles.

The play is directed by Miss Ruth McIlhenny, supervisor of English at the high school. She is assisted by Miss Ruth Scott.

Special features have been arranged to be presented between the acts of the play, consisting of Spanish dances and songs by a group of girls.

No Reserved Seats

The dancers are: Misses Mary Bell, Virginia Mitchell, Helen Mumper, Katharine Gitt, Mary Daugherty, Kathleen Black, Charlotte Waltemyer, Ruth Waltemyer, Virginia Storrick, Aurelia Codori, Betty Swope, Eleanor Peckman and Janet Ott. Included in the skit are two solos, "In Old Madrid," Eleanor Zinn and "Marchita," Henry Spahr. Directing the dancing scene are Misses Dorothy Brindle, supervisor of music, and Belda Green, instructor of girls' gymnastics. Miss Eva Sachs will be the accompanist.

No reserved seats are on sale.

R. P. FUNKHOUSER PREDICTS GOOD BUSINESS IN '32

All Officers Of Victor Products Corporation Are Re-elected This Year.

1931 INCREASE OVER 1930 PERIOD

"The outlook for a steady increase in business for 1932 is very promising," said Roy P. Funkhouser, vice president and treasurer of the Victor products corporation, in announcing the re-election of all officers of his company at a meeting in Hagerstown.

R. J. Funkhouser, who now resides in Winchester, Virginia, was re-elected president; Roy P. Funkhouser, of Gettysburg, vice president and treasurer; R. M. Hoffman, Gettysburg, secretary. J. B. Reynolds retains his position as sales manager of the rubber division.

Mr. Funkhouser told a reporter for The Times that the business of the Victor products corporation, Gettysburg, Winchester and Hagerstown, for 1931 was better than in 1930 and that every indication points to a steadily increasing business for the coming year.

Prospects Are Bright "We see no reason for a decline in our business. We have shown an increase last year over 1930 and from the outlook now we are satisfied that we will continue to show an increase this year." We have exerted every effort possible during the past twelve months to maintain our standard and to keep our employees at work with the result that we have had the finest cooperation from our workers in every department and it has been possible for us to maintain our customary economic policy and high standard of production.

"We have had encouraging reports from the various sections in which we transact business and we have every reason to believe that our business will continue in a satisfactory and profitable manner."

The Victor products corporation, of which the Gettysburg division is one of the largest units, manufactures cooling cabinets, four brands of rubber heels, taps, soles, composition soles, stair treads, steel shelves, cold storage doors, oil burners and ice chutes.

Between 115 and 125 men and women are employed steadily at the local plant.

Hyde Dismisses Complaint Of Adams Countian

A complaint brought by the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville, against the City produce and commission company, Cleveland, Ohio, under the federal perishable agricultural commodities act, has been dismissed by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

The complaint involved a car of peaches sold the Cleveland company in August, 1930, by the Musselman company through a Cleveland broker. The sale was made by telegraph.

On arrival of the car in Cleveland it was refused by the City produce and commission company on the ground that the peaches were smaller than those contracted for.

In reviewing the evidence the secretary of agriculture said Musselman had sent two wires to Cleveland, both describing a different carload. The Cleveland broker ordered a car based on assurance that the peaches were mostly about a two and a quarter inches in diameter, but it was found they were considerably smaller when the car was opened, the official said.

The secretary held that Musselman did not tender peaches described in his first wire to the Cleveland broker, and the produce firm in Cleveland was lawfully justified in refusing the shipment.

BULLET BLASTS THIEF'S DREAM OF HOMECOMING

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP)—A policeman's bullet has canceled the homecoming of Richard Geiss to his wife and their child in Germany.

He was shot to death Monday night as he fled, clutching in his hand $3 he had taken from the girl cashier of an Oak Park cleaning shop.

As he threatened her, Miss Helen Cooper pressed an alarm button summoning the police. They killed him as he tried to escape.

In his room Tuesday was found a cablegram and a passport to Germany. The message, dated January 5, from Hockheim, Germany, read:

"In vain waited. Dolores' pneumonia bad. Longs for you. Come immediately. With love, Gretchen, wife."

Geiss had written he was coming on the next boat.

CHIROPRACTOR IS ARRESTED

Local Man Furnishes $1,000 Bail For Hearing Before Justice January 19.

D. L. Beegle, a chiropractor here for more than three years, arrested Tuesday evening for practicing his profession, today said the charge was "the result of persecution of chiropractors by the medical profession in Pennsylvania."

"Pennsylvania is one of ten states in the United States where the medical profession has exerted such influence on the legislature that a board to examine and license chiropractors has never been established," he said.

"Thirty-eight states and the District of Columbia have examining boards, but Pennsylvania is an 'open state' and any chiropractor practicing here is open to immediate arrest."

Charles N. Fry, of the bureau of medical licensure, Harrisburg, laid the information for Beegle's arrest before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer, and the warrant was served on the chiropractor by a state trooper. Beegle furnished $1,000 bail for a hearing January 19 at 10 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Shearer.

"Osteopaths have an examining board in Pennsylvania," Mr. Beegle said, "but chiropractors have never been able to bring sufficient pressure to bear on the legislature to have such a board established for their profession. Personally, I would welcome such a board because I have already passed the Maryland state board examination for chiropractors and have graduated from the Palmer 'school of chiropractic at Davenport, Iowa.'"

Mr. Beegle, who said there are 1,000 chiropractors in Pennsylvania, today announced that his office would be open as usual until the present action is disposed of in court. Last week five Harrisburg (Continued on Page Two)

Leaves One Jail To Enter Another

John Raub, 60, of Easton, an itinerant printer, who spent the week-end in the Adams county jail following his arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct, was discharged from the Chambersburg hospital, Tuesday, following his admission there on Monday. Raub apparently headed for Chambersburg after being discharged from the local jail.

Raub was taken to the Chambersburg jail after he collapsed in a corridor of the Franklin county court house, Monday afternoon. He was intubated at the time, according to reports from Chambersburg.

Raub became so violent during the night that he had to be placed in a straight-jacket, Tuesday morning he had recovered from the effects of the liquor but was said to be indignant about the whole incident.

A large bottle, partly filled with a pale, peculiar-smelling liquid, was taken from Raub's pocket in the courthouse by Patrolman Yoh. An ambulance was summoned to take him to the hospital as he was believed at that time to have been suddenly stricken by illness.

Raub has been in Chambersburg before and on a few occasions was employed in a printing office there.

Charles Nevin Eisenhart, a well known citizen of East Berlin, died at 11:45 o'clock Tuesday morning at his home, following an illness of several years, due to complications. He was in his sixty-first year.

Mr. Eisenhart was a native and life-long resident of East Berlin. He was a carpenter by trade. When the Liberty Fire company was organized, he was one of the charter members.

Surviving are his widow, Maude (Layman) Eisenhart; two sons, Herbert and Leroy, of East Berlin; one daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Sowers, New Oxford, and two sisters, Mrs. Ann Anthony, York, and Mrs. Earl Sheetz, York. He was the son of the late Peter and Sarah Eisenhart.

Funeral services Friday, with services at the late residence at 1:30 o'clock, the Rev. H. D. Houtz, pastor of the Reformed church, officiating. Members of the East Berlin fire company will serve as pallbearers. Interment in the East Berlin Union cemetery.

Bury Mrs. Jane Lane Here On Thursday

Funeral services for Mrs. Jane Lane, 86, colored, of York, and a former resident of Gettysburg, who died Tuesday, will be held from the A. M. E. Zion church, South Washington street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Rector officiating. Burial will be in the colored cemetery.

The deceased is an aunt of Miss Priscilla Carter, of Gettysburg. She is survived by one son, John Lane, of York, and a sister, Mrs. Temple Brown, of York.

John C. Hollinger, of the college, was discharged as a patient.

Gettysburg National Bank Is Custodian Of Sinking Fund

The Gettysburg national bank was named custodian of the Adams county sinking fund by the county commissioners at their meeting, Tuesday. The county now has $28,295.51 in the sinking fund which is used to pay interest on bonds and to retire outstanding liens.

The sinking fund committee of Adams county comprises the commissioners and the county auditors, with R. Blaine Kitzmiller as treasurer and Louis W. Wagaman, secretary.

The commissioners awarded Cumberland and Germany townships each $90 for road work.

The board also voted to fix the floor inside the bar rail in the court room.

Rename Directors Of B. & L. Association

Stockholders of the Adams county building and loan association met Tuesday evening and re-elected the following directors:

Dr. E. H. Markley, Dorsey Dougherty, A. B. Plank, John W. Brehm, P. C. Stock, George P. Black, C. B. Dougherty, W. I. Oylar and C. J. Toot.

The directors then re-organized and re-elected Doctor Markley, president; Dorsey Dougherty, vice president; Mr. Stock, treasurer; Mr. Black, secretary, and Raymond P. Topper, attorney.

R. P. FUNKHOUSER PREDICTS GOOD BUSINESS IN '32

All Officers Of Victor Products Corporation Are Re-elected This Year.

1931 INCREASE OVER 1930 PERIOD

"The outlook for a steady increase in business for 1932 is very promising," said Roy P. Funkhouser, vice president and treasurer of the Victor products corporation, in announcing the re-election of all officers of his company at a meeting in Hagerstown.

R. J. Funkhouser, who now resides in Winchester, Virginia, was re-elected president; Roy P. Funkhouser, of Gettysburg, vice president and treasurer; R. M. Hoffman, Gettysburg, secretary. J. B. Reynolds retains his position as sales manager of the rubber division.

Mr. Funkhouser told a reporter for The Times that the business of the Victor products corporation, Gettysburg, Winchester and Hagerstown, for 1931 was better than in 1930 and that every indication points to a steadily increasing business for the coming year.

Prospects Are Bright

"We see no reason for a decline in our business. We have shown an increase last year over 1930 and from the outlook now we are satisfied that we will continue to show an increase this year. We have exerted every effort possible during the past twelve months to maintain our standard and to keep our employees at work with the result that we have had the finest cooperation from our workers in every department and it has been possible for us to maintain our customary economic policy and high standard of production.

"We have had encouraging reports from the various sections in which we transact business and we have every reason to believe that our business will continue in a satisfactory and profitable manner."

The Victor products corporation, of which the Gettysburg division is one of the largest units, manufactures cooling cabinets, four brands of rubber heels, taps, soles, composition soiling, stair treads, steel shelves, cold storage doors, oil burners and ice chutes.

Between 115 and 125 men and women are employed steadily at the local plant.

Hyde Dismisses Complaint Of Adams Countian

A complaint brought by the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville, against the City produce and commission company, Cleveland, Ohio, under the federal perishable agricultural commodities act, has been dismissed by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

The complaint involved a car of peaches sold the Cleveland company in August, 1930, by the Musselman company through a Cleveland broker. The sale was made by telegraph.

On arrival of the car in Cleveland it was refused by the City produce and commission company on the ground that the peaches were smaller than those contracted for.

In reviewing the evidence the secretary of agriculture said Musselman had sent two wires to Cleveland, both describing a different carload. The Cleveland broker ordered a car based on assurance that the peaches were mostly about two and a quarter inches in diameter, but it was found they were considerably smaller when the car was opened, the official said.

The secretary held that Musselman did not tender peaches described in his first wire to the Cleveland broker, and the produce firm in Cleveland was lawfully justified in refusing the shipment.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The stock market developed quiet strength today, climbing slowly to the earlier hours as better support was given to leading industrials. Rails were moderately higher while many favorite issues rose one to two points.

Re-organization of Adams County Banks Results in Few Changes of Directors

BULLET BLASTS THIEF'S DREAM OF HOMECOMING

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP)—A policeman's bullet has canceled the home-coming of Richard Geiss to his wife and their child in Germany.

He was shot to death Monday night as he fled, clutching in his hand $3 he had taken from the girl cashier of an Oak Park cleaning shop.

As he threatened her, Miss Helen Cooper pressed an alarm button summoning the police. They killed him as he tried to escape.

In his room Tuesday was found a cablegram and a passport to Germany. The message, dated January 5, from Hockheim, Germany, read:

"In vain waited. Dolors' pneumonia bad. Longs for you. Come immediately. With love, Gretchen, wife."

Geiss had written he was coming on the next boat.

All Officers Are Re-elected At Stockholders' Meetings Tuesday.

Few changes in directorates of national and state banks in Gettysburg and Adams county were made at annual stockholders meetings on Tuesday. Most of the re-elected boards re-organized immediately afterward and re-named all former officers. In one or two cases, directors resigned because of ill health.

Eighty-five per cent of the 6,000 outstanding shares of stock of the First National bank were voted at the annual meeting of stockholders there. The former officers, all of whom were re-elected, include C. W. Cook, W. G. Durboway, M. C. Jones, John D. Keith, M. E. Knouse, J. Elmer Musselman, W. I. Oylar, A. H. Reaser, W. Clarence Sheely, S. G. Spangler and Edmund W. Thomas.

SPORT SLANTS

ALAN GOULD

ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Big, good-natured Barney Berlinger would be among the last to want any more medals pinned on his broad chest. Nevertheless he will have to stand still while the amateur athletic union pins the James E. Sullivan memorial medal on him for being the "outstanding amateur athlete of 1931."

Bobby Jones won this award in 1930, the first year it was introduced as a recognition of conspicuous athletic activity, sportsmanship and character.

Chivalry almost prevailed in the past year's contest, for Helene Madison, the world's greatest woman swimmer, was within two points of tying Berlinger and Helen Wills Moody, the world's greatest woman tennis player, placed third on a list of 10 figuring in the A.A.U.'s final ballot.

I may be wrong in presuming that a number of my friends of the A.A.U. felt like keeping the award "in the family," but the results of the balloting, with Berlinger, Madison and Moody at the top, come as a distinct surprise.

I find much mention of Berlinger's activities in South Africa during the year but about the all-around activities, sportsmanship and example furnished, right at home by Harvard's Barry Wood?

For sheer competitive achievement, what amateur athlete could compare with Ellsworth Vines over the year's course? For some-back glamour and the old fighting spirit, where was there an accomplishment to surpass that of Francis Ouimet?

Protest

Of course we picked Ouimet, Wood and Vines as our trio of nominations in the James E. Sullivan memorial contest. This carries with it the privilege of making a squawk.

What we can't figure out is just how these three can finish so far behind the parade in a nationally representative poll. Ouimet tying with Clarence DeMar for fourth place, Wood placing sixth and Vines eighth.

Clarence DeMar is a grand old man, plodding along in his forties just for the joy of marathon running, but I can't understand where he got all those votes unless it was on a mileage basis.

In The Associated Press national poll among sports experts as to the outstanding individual achievement of the year, the three leading amateurs were Vines, Ouimet and Madison.

Maybe Dan Ferris can shed some light on the mysteries of the A.A.U. poll. I'll ask him.

AERO PASSERS

DEFEAT Y FIVE

Charley Gelbert Stars With Seven Goals And Three Foul Shots.

With Charley Gelbert starring on the offense, the Gettysburg Fleet-Wing quintet hung up its fourth straight victory Monday night by easily defeating the Waynesboro-Y. M. C. A. passers on the Hotel Gettysburg annex court, 45-21.

The Cardinal shortstop hung up seven goals and a trio of fouls for seventeen points. Gelbert landed the first eleven points for the victors and included in his shots one of the most sensational seen on the local courts for some time. Early in the second period Gelbert dashed down along the side-line and just before going out of bounds, flipped a one-handed overhead shot that cut the cords for two points.

Waynesboro put up a game but losing battle. The visitors showed promise in the early minutes when they hung up a 7-2 lead, but the rangy gas men began to function and soon had the game well in hand. The locals were easily the superior and scored at will.

In answer to the demands for better opposition for the Fleet-Wing team, Olsen's Terrible Swedes will appear here on Monday, January 18, in a game that promises to be one of the best of the season.

St. Mary's, of York, the only team that has defeated the locals, will play a return game here on Friday night. The Fleet-Wing dribblers are out for revenge and a real game is looked for.

Eddie Utz's Westover quintet of Littlestown kept up their winning ways by handing the Epco passers a 31-20 defeat in the preliminary tie of Poppelman, of Maryland. Ray Van Orman, coach of Johns Hopkins university, told me during the holiday fanfests in New York.

"Poppelman ran wild in a number of big games and looked like a wonder to me. Maryland, as a team, did not get the credit it deserved for enjoying a very fine season, losing only to Vanderbilt and tying Kentucky."

Diamond Tiaras

Find Favor With Capital Women

Washington (AP).—Diamond tiaras and old-fashioned circular ruffles are much in evidence in smart evening attire at White House social affairs this season.

Mrs. Edward E. Gann, at a recent reception, was gowning in petunia-colored velvet with square neck line in front and circular pieces falling from the shoulders in the back.

Donna Antonietta de Martino, wife of the Italian ambassador, wore white and silver brocade with a scarf of ice-blue tulle around her throat and a tiara of blue and white diamonds on her head.

Madame Paul Claudel, wife of the French ambassador, wore black velvet with a bodice of pale pink velvet embroidered in silver threads.

A shoulder cape of circular ruffles adorned the dress of ceru lace worn by Mme. Debuchi, wife of the Japanese ambassador. The skirt was also of circular ruffles.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, and Madame May, wife of the Belgian ambassador, wore diamond tiaras. Viscountess d'Alte, wife of the Portuguese minister, had both the diamond tiara and the short shoulder cape, the latter made of jet beads to match her gown.

Madame Bostrom, wife of the Swedish minister, wore a shoulder cape of black net with her black velvet gown. Mme. Veverka, wife of the Czechoslovakian minister, wore a narrow band of brilliants in her hair.

PARIS DONNING NIGHT FROCKS

New Gown Is Crown Between Formal Afternoon And Evening Wear.

By Diana Merwin
Paris (AP).—A new "Sunday Night Frock"—a cross between formal afternoon and evening gowns—is playing a telling role in the wardrobes of smart Paris women.

The new designs, which follow the demand for smart evening costumes minus the low décolletage of formal gowns, are worn at many a fashionable affair after 9 o'clock on both weekday and Sunday nights.

Simpler versions of the design even appear in the late afternoon hours at bridge and cocktail parties.

Their bodices are soft and dressy while their skirts fit closely to the hips and swirl about the ankles in soft folds.

Sleeves, voluminous in cut and richly embroidered in textiles or beads, are invariably part of the complete design, for even the frocks fashioned without sleeves are accompanied by one of the little waistlength jackets so popular for evening wear this winter.

One of the smartest of these frocks has a skirt of soft dull black crepe incrustated on a white bodice of the same material. Its drooping bishop sleeves, which have black lower sections, are richly embroidered in white angora wool and silver thread.

Another frock of black crepe is designed with a simple sleeveless bodice over which is worn a short jacket with full sleeves embroidered in shimmering tube beads of three shades of blue.

A black and red changeable taffeta frock with elbow sleeves and a high neckline tying in a big perky bow at the back, and a smoke grey chiffon studded with steel beads are other smart contributions to the Sunday night mode.

The frocks are generally worn with slippers matching their color.

Warnings Given Truck Haulers

Owners of motor vehicles hauling poles, pipes, lumber or any other material extending more than four feet beyond the rear of the chassis, bed or body of such vehicle are, in some cases, forgetting the law's requirement that a red flag or red light must be suspended from the end of the load, according to complaints reaching the state bureau of motor vehicles.

As a reminder, the bureau calls attention to section 818 of the Pennsylvania state vehicle code. The code provides that when vehicles are carrying a load as described above "there shall be displayed, at the end of such load, a red flag not less than 12 inches both in length and width, except that, between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise, there shall be displayed, at the end of any such load, a red light plainly visible, under normal atmospheric conditions, at least 200 feet from the rear."

The Pennsylvania state highway patrol will rigidly enforce this provision.

BOMBAY YOUTH, 9, IS JAILED

Make Bonfire Of Foreign Cloth; 16 Injured In Small Riot.

Bombay, Jan. 13 (AP).—A bonfire of foreign cloth burned Tuesday night in Bombay as a symbol of the India nationalist boycott campaign for the country's independence.

For the first time since resumption of the civil disobedience movement, volunteers of the congress party made a house-to-house collection of the cloth in the Mandvi area and set fire to it in front of a large crowd which shouted boycott slogans.

Police dispersed the crowd and arrested five persons, but it was a considerable time before the fire died down.

In another quarter of Bombay two policemen and sixteen civilians were injured when police dispersed a meeting of nationalists at Chowpatti Sands, along the seashore. Forty men and women were arrested.

A 9-year-old boy was sentenced to four years in the state reformatory as a nationalist picket, while at Calcutta a government case against Bimal Das Gupta, Bengal youth on trial for the alleged murder last spring of James Peddie, district magistrate at Midnapur, collapsed.

URGES GOOD PAY FOR TEACHERS

State Official Declares Salaries Of Pennsylvania Instructors Should Not Be Cut.

The salaries of school teachers in Pennsylvania should not be reduced until every other method of making financial ends meet has been tried and found wanting.

This opinion was expressed Tuesday afternoon by Dr. James N. Rule, secretary of the state department of public instruction, in an address before members of the Harrisburg chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Doctor Rule declared that the present minimum salary scale for teachers is not too high when compared with the salaries which are received by members of other professions which require the same amount of training and preparation.

"Teachers are good spenders and for the most part they spend their money for good things, so that cutting down their wages will reduce the buying capacity of the consumer. It is seldom that a teacher is found to be a waster," the speaker emphasized.

A general pruning of the non-educational side of the schools was given by Dr. Rule as a suggestion to reduce district expenses. The fact that there may be too many janitors and helpers in schools should be considered before a move is made to cut the salaries of educators, he said.

Doctor Rule described the workings of his department and told how efforts are being made to do away with a condition which will necessitate boys and girls to remain home from school because of lack of food and clothing. He also outlined the program of consolidation of the schools which is progressing in the state.

Soviets Blamed For Espionage

Baranowicz, Poland (AP).—Relentless campaigning against espionage along her eastern frontiers, Poland is waging her battles through the "quick courts".

Some observers claim these are merely drum-head court-martials. The execution here of seven persons convicted of espionage served to draw attention to conditions prevalent along the Russo-Polish border.

Officials on this side blame the collectivization farm scheme in Russia for considerable of the trouble. They say that whole Polish villages crossed to get what appeared as better conditions on the Russian side of the border.

But upon their arrival, Poles say, the less intelligent were shipped back while the others were schooled in soviet espionage and propaganda work.

These latter finally returned to Poland with minor espionage assignments, like furnishing the soviet with plans of Polish railway stations. It was on such charges that the seven men were convicted here.

MONEY KEEPER COLDLY ALOOF

Chancellor Of The Exchequer Has Impressive Municipal Records.

London (AP).—The British public is a good deal puzzled by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer in the national government in succession to Viscount Ickornshaw, see Philip Snowden.

They discovered long ago that the eye-glass, the top-hat and the formal manner of his brother, Sir Austen, conceal one of the most sympathetic and human personalities in public life.

With Neville Chamberlain, who is as aloof in manner as his brother, there is a feeling that "the style is the man himself." The cold, incisive speech and the formal demeanor may, it is felt, be really indications of his temperament.

Becomes National Figure
Britishers want to know all about the new chancellor because it is he who will drain or spare their pockets. They don't know as much as they would like because it is only in recent years that he has become a national figure.

Tall, thin, sober-faced, with jet black hair, deep-set eyes and a long, drooping mustache, Neville Chamberlain is now 63.

He entered the Birmingham city council in 1911 and rose to be lord mayor in 1915. By all accounts, he was an astonishingly efficient municipal official.

Positions of Power
Entering parliament in 1918, he has been successively postmaster-general, paymaster-general, minister of health, and is now for the second time chancellor of the exchequer.

When he held his present post before, he did not, however, introduce a budget as the Baldwin government fell before he was due to do so.

Out-of-State Motorists Buy Maryland Tags to Get Home

Baltimore, Jan. 13.—Rather than stand the expense of a one or two week delay until 1932 license plates can be mailed from their home states, several motorists who have been arrested since January 1 for driving with expired tags, have purchased Maryland markers to enable them to leave the state.

D. Marshall Schroeder, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, brought this out in commenting on the case of a Duke university (North Carolina) professor who complained of having to pay a $11.45 fine and wait a week in addition for his 1932 plates.

"Several of these have been from the middle west," he added. "Rather than wait in Maryland a week or two for plates from their home states, they have bought Maryland licenses and continued their trip. This doesn't authorize a motorist to drive on Maryland plates in his home state, but assures him a passage uninterrupted by an arrest for a similar charge."

LAVAL LEAVES PREMIER POST

Tenders Resignation To President Doumer; Socialists Balk Efforts.

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP).—Premier Pierre Laval, who headed the government of France for just ten days short of a year, presented the collective resignations of his ministry to President Doumer at the Elysee palace Tuesday night.

The president thanked M. Laval and all of his collaborators for their loyal services, and asked that the cabinet carry on the government until a new ministry has been chosen.

Informed political commentators said that since the Laval government had not been overthrown in parliament there was no reason why President Doumer should not ask the retiring premier to form another ministry, but his close linking with Andre Tardieu and other moderates would make it difficult for him to complete a national-union cabinet with wide representation of the left group.

May Turn To Senator Jeanneney
Some usually well informed persons asserted that the president favored a cabinet of concentration and that if M. Laval's personality stood in the way M. Doumer might call upon Senator Joseph Paul-Boncour, often France's representative at Geneva, an ardent defender of French security and at the same time a staunch believer in the League of Nations, as a possible rallying point for both the left and the right. Jules Jeanneney, one of the vice presidents of the senate, also was mentioned. The senator, who is 68 years old, was one of the late Premier Clemenceau's war-time collaborators.

In the event that he was called, it was said, he would head a ministry with wider representation of the various groups than there was in the outgoing cabinet.

Radical Socialists Back
The ministry decided to resign after the Radical Socialist group of the chamber of deputies, numbering 100, had refused the premier's offer to make their leader, Edouard Herriot, the successor to Aristide Briand as foreign minister, and to give the group as a whole representation in a new government according to its numerical importance.

Premier Laval had hoped that in inviting the Radical Socialists into his government he might enlarge the representation of the political parties and form a new cabinet more widely reflective of all shades of opinion.

Farrell Quits U. S. Steel Post

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—James A. Farrell announced Tuesday night he was retiring as president of the United States Steel corporation. He said his retirement would be effective April 13, the date of the annual board meeting.

Mr. Farrell, who is now 68, has been connected with the steel industry since he started work in a steel wire mill at New Haven, Connecticut, as a boy of 16.

He had been president of U. S. Steel since January, 1911. Mr. Farrell made the announcement of his retirement at his Fifth avenue home here. He said he would continue to occupy a place on the corporation's board of directors. His successor as president of the world's largest steel concern has not been named, he added.

Two Women Are Found Murdered

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Agnes B. Isley, about 40, prominent society woman, and her maid, about 65, were found murdered today, their skulls crushed, in the Isley home near here.

The bodies, scantily clad in night attire, were found in separate rooms. The house was in wild disorder. The body of Mrs. Isley was found on the floor. The body of the maid was found on a bed in a room across the hall.

Investigating officers said the women evidently had been slain by blows from some heavy weapon. There was evidence that the assailant washed his hands in the maid's room. A request for finger print experts was sent to Washington and Richmond police.

Finnish Farmers Prefer Horses

Vilpuri, Finland (AP).—Finnish agriculturists hope some Americans will come to Vilpuri for the 1932 agricultural exhibit.

They have heard about the extensive use of tractors on American farms and want to demonstrate how much better a job a good Finnish horse can do.

The farm horse hereabouts can trot a mile and a quarter in three minutes and can pull a load of two tons without undue effort. Besides, your proud Finnish farmer will tell you, the horse doesn't develop motor trouble.

SUNSET PASS

by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: Trueman Rock begins to believe that Thiry Preston loves him, but difficulties still hold them apart. Gage Preston, her father, and her brother, Ash, are cattle rustlers, although she has not admitted it. Rock is trying to smooth out the situation while he works for Preston, concealing his knowledge.

Chapter 40

LOVE—AND DISGRACE

Rock stood stiff and immovable as the pine tree by his side, but his mind, his heart received the fact of that embrace with tumultuous violence.

Scarcely had Thiry clasped him when she uttered a cry and released the convulsive hold, her hands unclenching and sliding down from each shoulder as if bereft of strength.

"Oh—I'm—beside myself!" she whispered.

Taking her hand, Rock led her to a seat on the bench under the pine, where she sank almost in collapse, her head bowed. Rock resisted his natural impulses—crushed down the exultation of the moment.

"Thiry, why did you—do that?" he asked, in a low whisper, holding her hand tight.

"I—I don't know."

"But dare I take it—as 'most any man would such,' action from a girl?"

"It's done . . . I'm amazed—shamed again at myself. What must you think of me?"

"Reckon I think all that's wonderful and beautiful. But I think also I'm entitled to an explanation."

"Trueman, how can I explain what I scarcely realize?" she said, with pathos. "I'd been hours with Dad and Ash. . . Oh, it was sickening. . . We begged—we prayed Ash to give up—plans he has. He was a fiend. . . So was Dad. But I kept trying till I was exhausted. . . As I came across to my cabin I was thinking of how you met that Half Moon outfit. How you resented suspicion against Dad! My poor sick heart must have warmed to you with something—surely with gratitude. You seemed my only friend. I was wondering how I should thank you—tomorrow. . . Then you rose right out the back ground. What fright you gave me! And when you spoke I—I just—"

"She faltered and broke off leaving him to guess the rest. Rock's compassion overcame his more powerful emotions.

"Thiry, you've explained how upset you were—and why. But that would not make you fling 'your arms round my neck.'"

"I'm guilty," she replied, distantly. "If you can't be understanding—generous—then take it how you will. . . After all, I belong to the 'Preston outfit.'"

These words, tinged with bitterness, accompanied by the withdrawal of her hand from his, gave Rock the cue. This was his hour. His intelligence recognized it, but his conscience would not let him rush madly to take advantage of her weakness at this critical time.

"Trueman, it's late. I must go in," she said.

"Reckon you can spare me an hour," he returned, his voice gruff with the strain of his emotions.

"Indeed no! I must go. Good night," she replied, nervously rising.

He grasped her arms, not gently, and pulled her down on the seat, this time closer to him, and he held her.

"You stay here. Reckon I might remind you that Ash is not the only bad hombre on the range."

"Very well, if you detain me by force," Thiry said, coldly. "Why were you waiting for me at this unheard-of hour?"

"I saw you go into Ash's cabin, and I thought I'd wait till you came out. Reckon it never occurred to me you'd be so long. But I kept waitin'. At that time flew by."

"Then you were spying on me—on us?" she queried, a quicker note in her voice.

"Reckon so, if you want to use hard words. But sure my strongest motive was just to see you, talk to you a minute."

"Well, since you've done that, please let me go."

"Thiry, you upset everything when you put your arms around my neck," he said.

"Don't harp on that," she flashed, hotly. "I never did such a thing before. I—I couldn't to any other man. It just happened. If you want to spare me let me forget it."

"Could you ever?"

"I might make myself."

"Reckon I'll never let you," rejoined Rock, stubbornly. "You've froze up the last few minutes. That hurts. I have my own battle to fight, and you're not helpin' me."

"Your battle! . . . Trueman Rock, if you had a hundredth part of my battle to fight—you—would flood the range in blood."

"I love you. My life is wrapped up in you. . . And don't we read that self-preservation is the first law of nature?"

"The most selfish, yet."

"Thiry, let me make your battle mine," he pleaded. "Tell me what weighs so upon you. Tell me your secret."

"I—I have no secret," she replied, shakily.

"Don't you trust my love?"

"Oh, I would if I dared," she whispered, in poignant pain.

Rock had wrenched that truth from her. Therein lay her weakness, the vulnerable spot upon which he must remorselessly make his attack. If she did not already love him, certain it seemed that he could make her. This horrible secret was clamping her heart; and Ash's baneful influence was like a poisonous lichen.

Rock felt assailed by insurmountable temptations. He would not stifle his conscience, but every moment he became more convinced that in order to save her he must play upon her weakness, force her to confession, betray his knowledge of her guilty sharing of Preston's secret. He strove for self-control. In vain!

"Thiry, you might dare anything on my love," he began.

"Oh no—no! If it were only myself."

Rock realized that Thiry was governed by her emotions. She was too honest for base secrets, and certainly too honest to hide her love, once she realized it. "Thiry, there are only two people in all the world—you and me."

"How silly, Trueman. You are selfish."

"Well, if it's selfish to love you—worship you—to want your burdens on my shoulders—to save you from trouble, disgrace—to make you happy—then indeed I am sure selfish."

Hurriedly she rose, and all but released herself.

"Do you speak of love—and—disgrace in one breath?" she queried.

Rock challenges Thiry with his knowledge of her guilty secret, tomorrow.

Hollywood

Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—If ever you come—an unknown who wants to break into pictures—to impress a casting director with your acting ability, you'll find it a weary job even to get an audience.

You'll be informed, more or less curtly, that he cannot be seen without an appointment, and when later you telephone to make an appointment the answer is in effect, that no appointments can be made "without an appointment." The casting office really needs that protection.

But how one makes an appointment to make an appointment is a movie problem that still puzzles Robert Young, who gave up the idea long before he dreamed that some day he would have a movie contract—and without seeking an appointment at all!

Critics Approve

Young, the lad who impressed critics as the young doctor-son of Helen Hayes in "The Sign of the Cross," is a recruit from the stage of the Pasadena community playhouse.

An agent who found Young there persuaded M-G-M officials to give him a screen test, and his contract resulted.

But earlier Young had tried to crash the studios in vain. That "appointment" requirement all but stumped him.

Through his brother, Joe Young, who worked extra, Robert saw assistant directors and assistant casting directors, but only a few days' extra work resulted.

After high school Robert wanted to act, but the need of steady income led him to more prosaic jobs.

SYNOPSIS: Trueman Rock begins to believe that Thiry Preston loves him, but difficulties still hold them apart. Gage Preston, her father, and her brother, Ash, are cattle rustlers, although she has not admitted it. Rock is trying to smooth out the situation while he works for Preston, concealing his knowledge.

Chapter 40 LOVE—AND DISGRACE

Rock stood stiff and immovable as the pine tree by his side, but his mind, his heart received the fact of that embrace with tumultuous violence.

Scarcely had Thiry clasped him when she uttered a cry and released the convulsive hold, her hands unclenching and sliding down from each shoulder as if bereft of strength.

"Oh—I'm—beside myself!" she whispered.

Taking her hand, Rock led her to a seat on the bench under the pine, where she sank almost in collapse, her head bowed. Rock resisted his natural impulses—crushed down the exultation of the moment.

"Thiry, why did you—do that?" he asked, in a low whisper, holding her hand tight.

"I—I don't know."

"But dare I take it—as most any man would such action from a girl?"

"It's done . . . I'm amazed—shamed again at myself. What must you think of me?"

"Reckon I think all that's wonderful and beautiful. But I think also I'm entitled to an explanation."

"Trueman, how can I explain what I scarcely realize?" she said, with pathos. "I've been hours with Dad and Ash. Oh, it is sickening. We begged—we prayed Ash to give up—plans he has. He was a fiend. So was Dad. But I kept trying till I was exhausted. . . . As I came across to my cabin I was thinking of how you met that Half Moon outfit. How you resented suspicion against Dad! My poor sick heart must have warmed to you with something—surely with gratitude. You seemed my only friend. I was wondering how I should thank you—tomorrow. . . . Then you rose right out the back ground. What fright you gave me! And when you spoke I—I just—"

She faltered and broke off leaving him to guess the rest. Rock's compassion overcame his more powerful emotions.

"Thiry, you've explained how upset you were—and why. But that would not make you fling your arms round my neck."

"I'm guilty," she replied, distantly. "If you can't be understanding—generous—then take it how you will. . . . After all, I belong to the Preston outfit."

These words, tinged with bitterness, accompanied by the withdrawal of her hand from his, gave Rock the cue. This was his hour. His intelligence recognized it, but his conscience would not let him rush madly to take advantage of her weakness at this critical time.

"Trueman, it's late. I must go in," she said.

"Reckon you can spare me an hour," he returned, his voice gruff with the strain of his emotions.

"Indeed no! I must go. Good night," she replied, nervously rising.

He grasped her arms, not gently, and pulled her down on the seat, this time closer to him, and he held her.

"You stay here. Reckon I might remind you that Ash is not the only bad hombre on the range."

"Very well, if you detain me by force," Thiry said, coldly. "Why were you waiting for me at this unheard-of hour?"

"I saw you go into Ash's cabin, and I thought I'd wait till you came out. Reckon it never occurred to me you'd be so long. But I kept waitin'." At that time flew by.

"Then you were spying on me—on us?" she queried, a quicker note in her voice.

"Reckon so, if you want to use hard words. But sure my strongest motive was just to see you, talk to you a minute."

"Well, since you've done that, please let me go."

"Thiry, you upset everythin' when you put your arms around my neck," he said.

"Don't harp on that," she flashed, hotly. "I never did such a thing before. I—I couldn't to any other man. It just happened. If you want to spare me let me forget it."

"Could you ever?"

"I might make myself."

"Reckon I'll never let you," rejoined Rock, stubbornly. "You've froze up the last few minutes. That hurts. I have my own battle to fight, and you're not helpin' me."

"Your battle! . . . Trueman Rock, if you had a hundredth part of my battle to fight—you'd flood the range in blood."

"I love you. My life is wrapped up in you. . . . And don't we read that self-preservation is the first law of nature?"

"The most selfish, yet."

"Thiry, let me make your battle mine," he pleaded. "Tell me what weighs so upon you. Tell me your secret."

"I—I have no secret," she replied, shakily.

"Don't you trust my love?"

"Oh, I would if I dared," she whispered, in poignant pain.

Rock had wrenched that truth from her. Therein lay her weakness, the vulnerable spot upon which he must remorselessly make his attack. If she did not already love him, certain it seemed that he could make her. This horrible secret was clamping her heart; and Ash's baneful influence was like a poisonous lichen.

Rock felt assailed by insurmountable temptations. He would not stifle his conscience, but every moment he became more convinced that in order to save her he must play upon her weakness, force her to confession, betray his knowledge of her guilty sharing of Preston's secret. He strove for self-control. In vain!

"Thiry, you might dare anything on my love," he began.

"Oh no—no! If it were only myself."

Rock realized that Thiry was governed by her emotions. She was too honest for base secrets, and certainly too honest to hide her love, once she realized it.

"Thiry, there are only two people in all the world—you and me."

"How silly, Trueman. You are selfish."

"Well, if it's selfish to love you—worship you—to want your burdens on my shoulders—to save you from trouble, disgrace—to make you happy—then indeed I am sure selfish."

Hurriedly she rose, and all but released herself.

"Do you speak of love and—disgrace in one breath?" she queried.

Rock challenges Thiry with his knowledge of her guilty secret, tomorrow.

Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—If ever you come—an unknown who wants to break into pictures—to impress a casting director with your acting ability, you'll find it a weary job even to get an audience.

You'll be informed, more or less curtly, that he cannot be seen without an appointment, and when later you telephone to make an appointment the answer is in effect, that no appointments can be made "without an appointment."

The casting office really needs that protection.

But how one makes an appointment to make an appointment is a movie problem that still puzzles Robert Young, who gave up the idea long before he dreamed that some day he would have a movie contract—and without seeking an appointment at all!

Critics Approve

Young, the lad who impressed critics as the young doctor-son of Helen Hayes in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," is a recruit from the stage of the Pasadena community playhouse.

An agent who found Young there persuaded M-G-M officials to give him a screen test, and his contract resulted.

But earlier Young had tried to crash the studios in vain. That "appointment" requirement all but stumped him.

Through his brother, Joe Young, who worked extra, Robert saw assistant directors and assistant casting directors, but only a few days' extra work resulted.

After high school Robert wanted to act, but the need of steady income led him to more prosaic jobs.

Not Clear Yet

The Pasadena playhouse, at night, gave his acting ambitions an outlet, but no money.

Even with that experience he failed to secure audience with Hollywood casting directors, or in the one or two instances where he did he received the usual promise, "I'll call you some time."

"So I decided I'd just wait for a chance on the stage," said Robert. "And then, to my amazement, I got a movie contract. But I still don't understand how you make an appointment to make an appointment!"

Mr. and Mrs. John Porro and son, Jack, of Steelton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Raffensperger, of Arendtsville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cole entertained a number of the members of Mr. Cole's family Saturday evening at their home in Arendtsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schlosser entertained a number of their friends Tuesday evening at their home in Arendtsville.

PARIS DONNING NIGHT FROCKS

New Gown Is Crown Between Formal Afternoon And Evening-Wear.

By Diana Merwin

Paris (AP).—A new "Sunday Night Frock"—a cross between formal afternoon and evening gowns—is playing a telling role in the wardrobes of smart Paris women.

The new designs, which follow the demand for smart evening costumes minus the low décolletage of formal gowns, are worn at many a fashionable affair after 9 o'clock on both weekday and Sunday nights.

Simpler versions of the design even appear in the late afternoon hours at bridge and cocktail parties.

Their bodies are soft and dressy while their skirts fit closely to the hips and swirl about the ankles in soft folds.

Sleeves, voluminous in cut and richly embroidered in textiles or beads, are invariably part of the complete design, for even the frocks fashioned without sleeves are accompanied by one of the little waistlength jackets so popular for evening wear this winter.

One of the smartest of these frocks has a skirt of soft dull black crepe incrustated on a white bodice of the same material. Its drooping bishop sleeves, which have black lower sections, are richly embroidered in white angora wool and silver thread.

Another frock of black crepe is designed with a simple sleeveless bodice over which is worn a short jacket with full sleeves embroidered in shimmering tube beads of three shades of blue.

A black and red changeable taffeta frock with elbow sleeves and a high neckline tying in a big perky bow at the back, and a smoke grey chiffon studded with steel beads are other smart contributions to the Sunday night mode.

The frocks are generally worn with slippers matching their color.

Warnings Given Truck Haulers

Owners of motor vehicles hauling poles, pipes, lumber or any other material extending more than four feet beyond the rear of the chassis, bed or body of such vehicle are, in some cases, forgetting the law's requirement that a red flag or red light must be suspended from the end of the load, according to complaints reaching the state bureau of motor vehicles.

As a reminder, the bureau calls attention to section 818 of the Pennsylvania state vehicle code. The code provides that when vehicles are carrying a load as described above there shall be displayed, at the end of such load, a red flag not less than 12 inches both in length and width, except that, between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise, there shall be displayed, at the end of any such load, a red light plainly visible, under normal atmospheric conditions, at least 200 feet from the rear.

The Pennsylvania state highway patrol will rigidly enforce this provision.

BOMBAY YOUTH, 9, IS JAILED

Make Bonfire Of Foreign Cloth; 16 Injured In Small Riot.

Bombay, Jan. 13 (AP).—A bonfire of foreign cloth burned Tuesday night in Bombay as a symbol of the India nationalist boycott campaign for the country's independence.

For the first time since resumption of the civil disobedience movement, volunteers of the congress party made a house-to-house collection of the cloth in the Mandvi area and set fire to it in front of a large crowd which shouted boycott slogans.

Police dispersed the crowd and arrested five persons, but it was a considerable time before the fire died down.

In another quarter of Bombay two policemen and sixteen civilians were injured when police dispersed a meeting of nationalists at Chowpatti Sands, along the seashore. Forty men and women were arrested.

A 9-year-old boy was sentenced to four years in the state reformatory as a nationalist picket, while at Calcutta a government case against Bimal Das Gupta, Bengal youth on trial for the alleged murder last spring of James P. Peddie, district magistrate at Midnapur, collapsed.

State Official Declares Salaries Of Pennsylvania Instructors Should Not Be Cut.

The salaries of school teachers in Pennsylvania should not be reduced until every other method of making financial ends meet has been tried and found wanting.

This opinion was expressed Tuesday afternoon by Dr. James N. Rule, secretary of the state department of public instruction, in an address before members of the Harrisburg chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Doctor Rule declared that the present minimum salary scale for teachers is not too high when compared with the salaries which are received by members of other professions which require the same amount of training and preparation.

"Teachers are good spenders and for the most part they spend their money for good things, so that cutting down their wages will reduce the buying capacity of the consumer. It is seldom that a teacher is found to be a waster," the speaker emphasized.

A general pruning of the non-educational side of the schools was given by Dr. Rule as a suggestion to reduce district expenses. The fact that there may be too many janitors and helpers in schools should be considered before a move is made to cut the salaries of educators, he said.

Doctor Rule described the workings of his department and told how efforts are being made to do away with a condition which will necessitate boys and girls to remain home from school because of lack of food and clothing. He also outlined the program of consolidation of the schools which is progressing in the state.

London (AP).—The British public is a good deal puzzled by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer in the national government, in succession to Viscount Ickorshaw, nee Philip Snowden.

They discovered long ago that the eye-glass, the top-hat and the formal manner of his brother, Sir Austen, conceal one of the most sympathetic and human personalities in public life.

With Neville Chamberlain, who is as aloof in manner as his brother, there is a feeling that "the style is the man himself." The cold, incisive speech and the formal demeanor may, it is felt, be really indications of his temperament.

Becomes National Figure

Britishers want to know all about the new chancellor because it is he who will drain or spare their pockets. They don't know as much as they would like because it is only in recent years that he has become a national figure.

Tall, thin, sober-faced, with jet black hair, deep-set eyes and a long, drooping mustache, Neville Chamberlain is now 63.

He entered the Birmingham city council in 1911 and rose to be lord mayor in 1915. By all accounts, he was an astonishingly efficient municipal official.

Positions of Power

Entering parliament in 1918, he has been successively postmaster-general, paymaster-general, minister of health, and is now for a second time chancellor of the exchequer.

When he held his present post before, he did not, however, introduce a budget as the Baldwin government fell before he was due to do so.

But upon their arrival, Poles say, the less intelligent were shipped back while the others were schooled in soviet espionage and propaganda work.

These latter finally returned to Poland with minor espionage assignments, like furnishing the soviets with plans of Polish railway stations. It was on such charges that the seven men were convicted here.

Widow Succeeds Husband as U. S. Senator from Arkansas

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP).—Special thanks to her home folks at Jonesboro went today from Mrs. Hattie Caraway as a token of appreciation for the overwhelming vote yesterday electing her as U. S. senator from Arkansas.

Congratulations from fellow-Arkansians poured into her office today. Mrs. Caraway is the first woman regularly elected to a seat in the senate.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 13 (AP).—The election of Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway as United States senator, an honor never before accorded a woman, was assured in returns from Tuesday's special election in Arkansas.

Returns from forty-seven counties, eight complete and several others almost complete, gave Mrs. Caraway 12,738 votes against 391 for Sam D. Carson and 536 for Rex R. Floyd. Her two opponents were listed as independents on the ticket. The Republicans did not offer a candidate.

The election had been generally regarded as a mere formality as the democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Arkansas, but because of its history-making aspect women's clubs and party leaders sought to get out a large vote.

With most county treasurers in strained circumstances, women volunteers serving without pay acted as election officials in many places. Less than two-thirds of the seventy-five counties held elections, due to depleted treasuries and in some of them only one election booth was maintained.

The inconvenience of polling places in many instances and the cold rain which fell all day accounted largely for a light vote.

In her home city of Jonesboro, only two votes were cast against Mrs. Caraway, and in many precincts over the state her opponents polled no votes.

Mrs. Caraway, who took a seat in the senate at the opening of the present session under a temporary appointment from Governor Harvey Farnell, will serve out the unexpired term of her late husband, Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, who died two months ago. The term expires in March, 1933.

Bureau Approves "Gas" Permits

The fire bureau of the Pennsylvania state police today announced that during 1931 approvals were issued by that office for the installation of 8250 tanks and pumps for the storage and handling of gasoline and similar inflammable liquids. All but 225 tanks were placed underground. With 365 installations, York led other counties in this activity.

Moose Dictator Pays Fine Of $25

John C. Goodermuth, Gettysburg, R. D. 1, dictator of the Gettysburg Lodge of Moose, paid a fine of $25 and costs when he appeared before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer, on a charge of operating illegal gambling devices. A number of punch boards were seized when state police and federal officers raided the Moose house December 12. Goodermuth and Clarence Wolf, steward, are facing liquor charges in connection with the raid.

Out-of-State Motorists Buy Maryland Tags to Get Home

Baltimore, Jan. 13.—Rather than stand the expense of a one or two week delay until 1932 license plates can be mailed from their home states, several motorists who have been arrested since January 1 for driving with expired tags have purchased Maryland markers to enable them to leave the state.

D. Marshall Schroeder, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, brought this out in commenting on the case of a Duke university (North Carolina) professor who complained of having to pay a $11.45 fine and wait a week in addition for his 1932 plates.

"Some states have requested us to allow a week or two of grace to those who haven't acquired their new licenses, but North Carolina isn't among them," Mr. Schroeder explained. "If a motorist's own home state will not allow him to drive on last year's licenses after December 31, then certainly Maryland cannot be expected to."

Mr. Schroeder said North Carolina was among those states which did not request reciprocal courtesies this year. Others, including Florida, Georgia, Missouri, Utah and Texas, have asked Maryland to permit their motorists to drive until February 1 on 1931 plates, as has the District of Columbia. Idaho licenses for 1931 are good until March 31.

About fifteen out-of-state motorists have been arrested and fined since the first of the year, Mr. Schroeder said.

"Several of these have been from the middle west," he added. "Rather than wait in Maryland a week, or two for plates from their home states, they have bought Maryland licenses and continued their trip. This doesn't authorize a motorist to drive on Maryland plates in his home state, but assures him a passage uninterrupted by an arrest for a similar charge."

LAVAL LEAVES PREMIER POST

Tenders Resignation To President Doumer; Socialists Balk Efforts.

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP).—Premier Pierre Laval, who headed the government of France for just ten days short of a year, presented the collective resignations of his ministry to President Doumer at the Elysee palace Tuesday night.

The president thanked M. Laval and all of his collaborators for their loyal services, and asked that the cabinet carry on the government until a new ministry has been chosen.

Informed political commentators said that since the Laval government had not been overthrown in parliament there was no reason why President Doumer should not ask the retiring premier to form another ministry, but his close linking with Andre Tardieu and other moderates would make it difficult for him to complete a national-union cabinet with wide representation of the left group.

May Turn To Senator Jeanneney

Some usually well informed persons asserted that the president favored a cabinet of concentration and that if M. Laval's personality stood in the way M. Doumer might call upon Senator Joseph Paul-Boncour, often France's representative at Geneva, an ardent defender of French security and at the same time a staunch believer in the League of Nations, as a possible rallying point for both the left and the right. Jules Jeanneney, one of the vice-presidents of the senate, also was mentioned. The senator, who is 68 years old, was one of the late Premier Clemenceau's war-time collaborators.

In the event that he was called, it was said, he would head a ministry with wider representation of the various groups than there was in the outgoing cabinet.

Radical Socialists Back

The ministry decided to resign after the Radical Socialist group of the chamber of deputies, numbering 100, had refused the premier's offer to make their leader, Edouard Herriot, the successor to Aristide Briand as foreign minister, and to give the group as a whole representation in a new government according to its numerical importance.

Premier Laval had hoped that in inviting the Radical Socialists into his government he might enlarge the representation of the political parties and form a new cabinet more, widely reflective of all shades of opinion.

Farrell Quits U. S. Steel Post

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—James A. Farrell, announced Tuesday night he was retiring as president of the United States Steel corporation.

He said his retirement would be effective April 13, the date of the annual board meeting.

Mr. Farrell, who is now 68, has been connected with the steel industry since he started work in a steel wire mill at New Haven, Connecticut, as a boy of 16.

He had been president of U. S. Steel since January, 1911.

Mr. Farrell made the announcement of his retirement at his Fifth avenue home here.

He said he would continue to occupy a place on the corporation's board of directors. His successor as president of the world's largest steel concern has not been named, he added.

Two Women Are Found Murdered

Middleburg, Va., Jan. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Agnes B. Isley, about 40, prominent society woman, and her maid, about 65, were found murdered today, their skulls crushed, in the Isley home near here.

The bodies, scantily clad in night attire, were found in separate rooms. The house was in wild disorder.

The body of Mrs. Isley was found on the floor. The body of the maid was found on a bed in a room across the hall.

Investigating officers said the women evidently had been slain by blows from some heavy weapon. There was evidence that the assailant washed his hands in the maid's room. A request for fingerprint experts was sent to Washington and Richmond police.

Finnish Farmers Prefer Horses

Vilpuri, Finland (AP).—Finnish agriculturists hope some Americans will come to Vilpuri for the 1932 agricultural exhibit.

They have heard about the extensive use of tractors on American farms and want to demonstrate how much better a job a good Finnish horse can do.

The farm horse hereabouts can trot a mile and a quarter in three minutes and can pull a load of two tons without undue effort. Besides, your proud Finnish farmer will tell you, the horse doesn't develop motor trouble.

York Springs National

T. N. Cashman, son of the late Dr. E. W. Cashman, was elected a director at the York Springs National bank at the annual meeting of stockholders Tuesday. Mr. Cashman succeeds Henry J. Gardner, who resigned because of ill health after being a member of the board since the bank was taken into the national banking system in 1905.

Other directors elected include William M. Weidner, Guy Bream, W. H. Smith, George E. Deatrick, Seright Nell and Henry Strayer.

The directors re-organized by re-electing Mr. Deatrick, president; Mr. Nell, vice president; Mr. Weidner, cashier; E. S. Guise, assistant cashier, and C. E. Prosser, teller.

Littlestown National

Besides paying the regular dividend of 12 per cent, the Littlestown National bank added $10,000 to its surplus, according to announcement at the annual meeting of stockholders Tuesday.

Fourteen directors were re-elected by the stockholders. They are George S. Kump, Joseph Milson, Dr. H. E. Gettier, James G. Spalding, E. Charles Matthias, Frank A. Waybright, John H. Marker, Leo B. Frommeyer, R. H. Wilson, H. F. Dodder, A. W. Feaser, George W. Zepp, Irvin B. Black and Warren R. Jones.

The directors then re-organized and re-elected Mr. Jones, president; Mr. Feaser, vice president; Arthur E. Bair, cashier; E. M. Study and Theron W. Spangler, assistant cashiers.

F. and M. Bank, New Oxford

The stockholders of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, New Oxford, re-elected their board of directors at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon. The board will reorganize at a meeting on Friday. The members of the board are J. N. Hersch, John S. Weaver, E. T. Anker, J. C. Geiselman, William D. Himes, E. C. Livingston, Dr. E. H. Markley, W. H. Stock and C. E. Winand.

East Berlin National

The following directors were elected to serve for the ensuing year at a meeting of the stockholders of the First National bank, East Berlin, Tuesday afternoon: P. C. Smith, J. L. Spangler, Abraham Roth, A. L. Bubb, J. E. Gentzler, N. J. King and George J. Jacobs. All were re-elected.

The board then re-organized by electing Mr. Smith, president; Mr. Spangler, vice president; W. A. Keeney, cashier; N. A. Decker, assistant cashier, and E. W. Slaybaugh, teller.

State Bank, East Berlin

The stockholders of the Peoples State bank, East Berlin, elected the following directors at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon: Friezer Altland, D. E. Brandt, Z. E. Craumer, P. L. Hoover, William C. Leid, T. C. Miller, J. Franklin March, Harry J. March and Michael Rebert. All were members of the retiring board. The board will reorganize at a meeting next Monday.

Abbottstown State Bank

The board of directors of the Abbottstown State bank was re-elected by the stockholders last Monday. The directors include Reuben Altland, H. A. Waltman, M. E. Basehoar, Paul Wolf, John C. Burgrad, Ralph J. Hoffacker, John H. Calvert and S. Harry C. Meekley.

The board re-organized by re-electing Mr. Altland, president; Mr. Waltman, vice president; Mr. Basehoar, secretary, and Wilson Bream, cashier.

Removed Abscess: On Monday afternoon Drs. Stewart and Dalbey removed a large abscess from the back of the right ear of Charles the little four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ogden, Steinwehr avenue. The operation was a success and the little fellow is getting along nicely.

Will Erect Handsome Building: For some time the Directors of the First National Bank, this place, have been contemplating the erection of a new building, and at a recent meeting took final action, deciding to erect a modern and handsome structure.

The institution is doing a great business, as is well known, and more commodious and convenient quarters for its many customers is necessary.

The building will be three stories high and occupy the present site. A store room will be equipped with frontage on Center Square. The third floor will be conveniently fitted up for the Gettys Lodge I. O. O. F.

Marriages: Fisher—Chapman: Dec. 27, at Arendtsville, by Rev. Theodore C. Hesson, Robert E. Fisher, Biglerville, to Miss Minerva Chapman, Orrtanna.
Stout—Spangler: Nov. 28, at York, by Rev. A. R. Steck, Wm. H. Stout, to Miss Mary E. Spangler, both of Gettysburg.

Farmers Plowing: Charles A. B. Howard, of Straban township, plowed five acres of ground for oats on Monday and Tuesday of last week. We have been informed that other farmers have been engaged in turning the soil. Remarkable for this time of the year.

Received Panama: The ever happy Jacob Toot, of Straban township, received a handsome and durable Christmas gift from William E. Weigle in the shape of a Panama hat. Mr. Toot feels justly proud of the gift, it being the "genuine article," right from Panama.

Election of Officers: At the annual business meeting of the Gettysburg Building and Loan Association held Saturday evening, the following officers were elected: Pres. P. M. Bieke; V. Pres., Calvin Hamilton; Sec., C. H. Ruff; Treas., E. M. Bender; Attorney, J. L. Butt; Directors, A. Hammond, E. F. Slaybaugh, D. M. Wolf, John C. Lower, Dr. T. C. Billheimer.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Adams County Mutual Fire Insurance Company held Monday, these directors were re-elected: D. P. McPherson, H. C. Pickling, W. R. White, C. G. Beales, I. S. Miller, J. W. Taughnbaugh, J. D. Neiderer, D. R. Musselman, C. L. Longsdorff, Abia Smucker, John N. Hersh and G. H. Buehler.

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.
Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;
Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.
There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the Most High.
God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early.
The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttereth his voice, the earth melted.
The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.
Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the earth.
He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.
Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth.

HISTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

A Chronological Review Of Things That Have Gone Before, And The Trials And Tribulations Of Our Ancestors, As Published Serially For The Benefit Of Gettysburg Times' Readers.

Adams County Medical Society

This society was formed in Gettysburg, June 14, 1873, by Drs. R. B. Elderice, Robert Horner, W. J. McClure, J. L. Baehr, A. Holtz, C. Thompson and J. W. C. O'Neal. A. Holtz, chairman; R. B. Elderice, secretary; J. L. Baehr, treasurer. There were then about thirty-five practicing physicians in the county. At the regular meeting in June, 1873, the attendants were Drs. H. S. Huber, J. P. B. Breneman, W. C. Stem, E. W. Mumma, Charles Horner, R. N. Meisenholder, F. C. Wolf, A. B. Dill. Permanent officers elected: Robert Horner, president; H. S. Huber and A. Holtz, vice presidents; R. B. Elderice, recording secretary; William J. McClure, corresponding secretary; J. W. C. O'Neal, treasurer.

June 8, 1881, the legislature passed an act requiring the prothonotary of each county to provide a book in which shall be kept a registry of each practicing physician in medical surgery in the county; the record keeping an account of the deaths or removals from the county of physicians. The act goes on to specify the qualifications in point of medical education each practitioner shall have before he can practice. Any one, however, in the continuous practice since 1871 can continue practice without the qualifications required by law.

Present licensed practitioners in the county are as follows:
George B. Aiken, a native of Baltimore, who received the degree of M. D. at the University of Maryland, March 10, 1836, settled in McSherrystown, where he has been continuously in the practice.

James B. Combs
James B. Combs, nativity, Huntington county, Penn.; residence, Round Hill, Huntington township, took his degree at the Medical College of Ohio, March 1, 1851, and also graduated in the Medical and Surgical University of Philadelphia, February 23, 1872, and for some years practiced medicine in Baltimore.

E. W. Cashman, a native of Bendersville, Adams County, was residing in York Springs; graduated in the University of Pennsylvania, May 1, 1886.
Daniel L. Baker resides in East Berlin.

Aaron L. Bishop, native of Littlestown, where he has continued to reside all his life. A graduate of the University of New York, March 1, 1847.
John C. Bush, born in Baltimore, graduated in University of Maryland in March, 1854; resides in Mountjoy township, where he has had a continuous residence.

Abraham Piere Beam, of Franklin county, a graduate of Jefferson Medical college, March, 1876; residence, Fairfield.

Jesse P. Breneman, native of York county; graduate of university of New York. He located in Arendtsville and finally Gettysburg. John G. Brown, born in Adams county; residence, Hampton, in this county. He graduated in the University of Maryland March 1, 1878.

David A. Diller, native of York county. He took his degree in the Eclectic Medical college of Pennsylvania April 21, 1864. He resided in York county until 1859, and since then has resided in York Springs, this county.

Howard L. Diehl, a native of Littlestown; residence, Gettysburg; graduate of Hahnemann Medical college, of Philadelphia, March 1, 1876.

TREE AND MAN

The oak tree never quits its place
To ask about a neighbor's care.
A thing of majesty and grace,
Whose leafy arms seem raised in prayer.

It stands two hundred years or more
Against the storms of winter stout,
While man is broken down before
The sands of seventy years run out.

From the first moment of its birth
Until a rotted log it dies,
Its roots draw sweetness from the earth,
Its leaves draw nectar from the skies.

Patient, untroubled and serene,
A tree, with age in splendor grows,
Because on it no grief has been

Poor man must roam the world afar
And give his strength to many needs;
Pride, pomp and place and pity are
Forever spurring him to deeds.

Not only must he suffer pain,
But God has fashioned him so fair
That none may cry to him in vain,
Even a stranger's hurt he'll share.

The span of mortal life is brief.
The oak tree long outlives us all,
Yet better 'tis to suffer grief:
To weary oft at duty's call;

To wear our strength and courage out
Against the tides of human fears
Than live and never ask about
The cause of sorrow's blinding tears.

ANAPHYLAXIS

The term prophylaxis is common to our every day language. It means defending or protecting against disease.

Anaphylaxis, however, is a term confined to medical usage. Its meaning is the opposite of prophylaxis.

There are certain reactions in the body which under certain circumstances favor its interests and under other circumstances produce injurious results. Anaphylactic reactions belong to this latter group.

To make this matter clear consider, for example, but only by way of illustration, the reflex action of scratching.

If some portion of the body itches it will be scratched, even if the person is asleep.

This reflex action is useful, and hence may be called prophylactic, when the itch is caused by, say, an insect, for the action will drive the insect away.

If, however, the itch is due to ringworm, or to eczema, then the scratching will in no way remove the injuring agent, but will, on the contrary, either spread the disease or further injure the affected part.

Such a result might be a considered anaphylactic in nature.

True anaphylactic reactions are the result of the chemical response of the body cells to agents to which they have become sensitized.

Experimentally this type of reaction was observed as far back as the middle of the last century.

It is only comparatively recently that its connection with asthma, bronchitis, hay fever, urticaria, and other similar conditions came to be appreciated.

While much remains to be known about the mechanisms involved in Fourteenth Annual Convention of Adams County Township Supervisors and Auditors Association will be held Thursday, January 21, 1932, at the Court House, Gettysburg, Pa., at 10:00 A. M.

Mining Art

Is Studied

The large enrollment in the evening mining schools in the anthracite region indicates a growing interest on the part of men and management, according to reports submitted to the department of public instruction.

The Hudson Coal company is co-operating this year in the conduct of three new schools located at Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Carbondale. The Madeira Hill Coal company is co-operating in the conduct of a new school at Frackville.

More than 700 men are enrolled in the mining classes in Pottsville, Shenandoah and Mt. Carmel, where the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company co-operate.

The Lehigh Navigation Coal company continues to co-operate in the evening mining school at Coaldale. This is the first evening school to be organized in the anthracite region under the provisions of the state and federal vocational education acts.

Ten Incumbent Congressmen May Seek Five State Berths

Harrisburg, (AP).—The new congressional reapportionment of Pennsylvania, based on the 1930 census and effective this year, provides five districts in which incumbents may compete against each other.

This reapportionment reduced Pennsylvania's congressional delegation from 36 to 34. The districts in which present congressmen, if they desire re-election, must run against each other are:

The new second Philadelphia district in which Congressman James M. Beck, and Congressman Edward Lowber Stokes, both republicans, reside.

The new Bucks-Lehigh ninth district in which Congressman Henry W. Watson, republican, Bucks, and Congressman Norton L. Lichtenwalner, democrat, Lehigh, now reside. In the event both decide to run for re-election, however, they may not oppose each other until next November as they would be on opposite sides of the fence at next April's primary election.

The new Schuylkill-Northumberland (thirteenth) district in which Congressman George F. Brumm, Schuylkill, and Representative Frederick W. Magrady, Northumberland, both republicans, reside.

The new Clearfield-Centre-Blair (twenty-third) district in which Representative J. Banks Kurtz, Blair, and Representative J. Mitchell Chase, Clearfield, both republicans, reside.

The new Armstrong, Indiana, Jefferson, Cambria (twenty-seventh) district in which Representative Nathan L. Strong, Indiana, and J. Russell Leech, Cambria, both republicans, reside.

This reapportionment created three new districts in which no congressman now resides, these being the fifth Philadelphia, Berks county fourteenth, and Montgomery county seventeenth districts.

Other changes made by the reapportionment follow:

Representative Harry C. Ransley, republican, elected in the old third Philadelphia district is now in the first Philadelphia district.

Representative James J. Connolly, republican, elected in the old fifth Philadelphia district is now in the third Philadelphia district.

Congressman not affected by the reapportionment so far as their new districts are concerned follow:

Fourth Philadelphia district, Benjamin M. Golder, republican, incumbent.

Sixth Philadelphia district, George A. Welsh, republican incumbent.

Seventh Philadelphia district, George P. Darrow, republican incumbent.

Eighth district, Delaware county, James Wolfenden, republican, incumbent.

Tenth district, Lancaster and Chester counties, J. Roland Kinzer, Lancaster republican, incumbent.

Eleventh district, Lackawanna county, Patrick J. Boland, democrat.

Twelfth district, Luzerne county, C. Murray Turpin, republican.

Fifteenth district, Bradford, Pike, Wayne, Susquehanna, Columbia, Montour, Sullivan and Wyoming counties, Louis T. McFadden, Bradford, republican.

Sixteenth district, Clinton, Lycoming, Potter, Tioga, McKean and Cameron counties, Robert F. Rich, Clinton, republican.

Eighteenth district, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin, Perry, Snyder, Bedford and Union counties, Edward M. Beers, Huntingdon, republican.

Nineteenth district, Cumberland, Dauphin and Lebanon counties, I. H. Doutrich, Dauphin, republican.

Twentieth district, Warren, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Clarion and Elk counties, Thomas C. Cochran, Mercer, republican.

Twenty-first district, Northampton, Carbon and Monroe counties, William R. Coyle, Northampton, republican.

Twenty-second district, Adams, Franklin and York counties, Harry L. Haines, York, democrat.

Twenty-fourth district, Fayette and Somerset counties, Samuel A. Kendall, republican.

Twenty-fifth district, Green and Washington counties, Henry W. Temple, Washington, republican.

Twenty-ninth district, Beaver, Butler and Lawrence counties, J. Howard Swick, Beaver, republican.

Twenty-eighth district, Westmoreland county, Adams M. Wyant, republican.

Twenty-ninth district, Crawford and Erie counties, Milton W. Shreve, Erie, republican.

Thirtieth, Allegheny district, Edmund F. Erk, republican.

Thirty-first, Allegheny district, Clyde Kelly, republican.

Thirty-second, Allegheny district, Harry A. Estep, republican.

Thirty-fourth, Allegheny district, Guy E. Campbell, republican.

The reapportionment reduced the former 36 districts to 34 by the following changes:

Lehigh county was taken away from Berks in the old 14th district and added to Bucks county to form the new ninth, Berks remaining alone in the new fourteenth district.

Montgomery county was separated from Bucks county in the old ninth district to remain alone in the new seventeenth district.

Reparations and War Debts Big Topics at Lausanne Meet

By Reid Monfort
Washington (AP).—To cancel or not to cancel. To revise or not to revise?

These are the questions uppermost in the minds of world leaders as the Young plan signatories prepare to gather at Lausanne January 18 to consider anew the problem of intergovernmental reparations and war debts.

The conference was called chiefly as a result of the report of the Young plan advisory committee stating that Germany would be unable to resume reparations payments on the present scale at the end of the moratorium. The United States will not be represented.

Y. W. C. A. ACTIVITIES

The colored group will meet between 7 and 8 o'clock Friday evening.

The Business and Professional girls' club will meet at 6 o'clock Thursday evening. Mrs. Robert Marsh will be the guest speaker for the evening.

The Homecraft club will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon for a candy-making party and also to complete plans for the baked ham supper which the group will hold from 4:30 to 10 o'clock Saturday evening, January 16.

The legislative and industrial committees met Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Maud Wierman Kennedy, the chairman, presiding. Plans were formulated for entertaining informally the members of the two federated women's clubs of the county and members of other representative women's organizations on the evening of Saturday, January 23.

Mrs. Mildred Scott Olmstead representing the women's international league for peace and freedom will be a special guest of the group at this time and will tell something of the work of the organization and its plans for the future.

YORK SPRINGS

The York Springs group of the Y. W. C. A. met at the home of Mrs. William Weidner on the evening of January 6 with nineteen members and five guests present.

A New Year's program including readings and special musical numbers was a feature of the evening with resolutions and plans for the New Year's diary under discussion. The evening closed with a social hour during which games were played and refreshments served.

LITTLESTOWN

The community club of Littlestown met Monday evening at the home of Miss Edna Blocher. The feature of the evening was the demonstration of rug making by Mrs. Greenawalt, a special guest for the evening. Mrs. Greenawalt started both a hooked rug and plaited rug for the group leaving them for the group to complete and use as they wish.

SPORT PLANTS

ALAN GOULD
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

C. Paddock may get points for being in there trying, but the one-time chug-chug boy of the cinder paths has about as much chance of crashing the Olympic sprint team this year as the old lady from Dubuque.

The blond Texas who raced into the sprint spotlight in California has always been a game runner, but four years ago he was barely able to make the Olympic team as the fourth entry at 200 meters. He was nowhere in the competition at Amsterdam.

That was his third Olympiad, an extraordinary achievement in itself. No doubt the thought of the games as Los Angeles this year is father to the idea of his taking another whirl.

The prospects of any veterans such as Paddock making a comeback in the Olympic features is further reduced by the fact that only three individual entries, instead of four, will be permitted in each event.

Undisputed Champ

Russ Newland's domination for the hard-luck prize of 1931 goes to the top of the list. It concerns George Sharkey, old-time San Francisco sportsman; former manager of Al Norton, heavyweight, and one of Jack Dempsey's close friends. The sequence of his series of misfortunes follows:

1. This fall he broke his ankle.
2. Because water was scarce early this fall he had to buy several hundred dollars' worth for the rice fields of his duck shooting club at Colusa, California.

3. Insurance ran out on his duck club house.

4. Next day, before he could renew insurance, club house burned down.

5. All the cash money he had, several hundred dollars, was in paper bills and burned with the building.

6. Brake on his car loosened and car ran off a bridge into a slough.

7. Then heaviest rainfall of years set in and completely flooded his duck club grounds. This after he had bought water.

8. One of his crutches broke and he re-fractured his ankle.

9. When he was laid up the second time, he got the hives.

Sad Days

The tipoff on the times is Jimmy Johnston's prediction that the "gate" for the Schmeling-Walker championship match at Miami will draw around $250,000.

Jimmy has acquired the superstitious habit of under-estimating the receipts within the past year. No doubt he hopes the figure will pass $300,000. The fight will be a howling success if it does.

Less than five years ago Gene Tunney's end of the receipts alone touched $1,000,000 for the last of the Dempsey bouts.

Three years ago the Stribling-Sharkey affair drew a $400,000 "gate" at Miami. Scott and Sharkey drew $193,262 in 1930, Carnera and Maloney $43,000 last winter.

"Why don't you set your Stove league doping out which is the most popular sport and how and why?" asks William Upham Swan, of the Boston Swans, better known to yachtsmen of all harbors by his cable address of "Billsan."

No sooner said than done, Bill. The Stove league machinery already is in motion, and we should have the returns shortly. Meanwhile let's hear from Bill:

"I suspect most every one will pick baseball, but I think you will find that every boy in the north plays hockey when he can get a chance. Certainly more of them have hockey sticks than football togs, tennis racquets or golf clubs. As for yachts, it will be pretty far down on the list, although over two thousand small boats manned by at least three people sailed races in New England last summer."

"No one has ever compared one sport with another, so consider my 'Relativity in Sport.'"

"All sports can involve these four attributes: Strength, skill, strategy and luck."

"Take football, which may be said to combine 20% strength, 30% skill, 45% strategy and 5% luck."

"Yachting may be said to have 5% strength, 50% skill, 20% strategy and 25% luck."

"Tennis: 20% strength (stamina), 30% skill, 45% strategy and 5% luck."

Good Big Man
It does not necessarily follow in basketball, Phog Allen remarks, that the good big man is better than the good little man, but out at the University of North Dakota they have converted a giant football tackle into a first class basketball player.

His name is Ted Meinhorst. He stands six feet seven inches and weighs 240 pounds. He must be a trifle shy, however, for we read in the Grand Forks Herald:

"Lots of people thought Ted was too big and heavy to make a basketball player; but, although he can't move as quickly as some of the smaller performers, he is bound to be effective when he learns the best manner to use his great advantage in size. He is not slow either. Ted can shoot, and he is getting over being nervous on the floor. When he reaches a point of confidence the big fellow is going to make things very annoying for the opposition."

9.4 Yards A Whack

It's a trifle late, but still worth noting, as Roy Hendrickson remarks, that Sylvan Saumer was considerable of a halfback in three years for St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minnesota.

He carried the ball 343 times in three years' play, gaining 3,027 yards—an average of 9.4 yards per try. His total yardage is well over 30 times the length of the gridiron.

Saumer, a six-footer, who weighs about 180 in moleskins, passes and punts in addition to being St. Olaf's star runner. Last year he also called signals, which cut down the number of times he carried the ball.

Freshmen may play in the Minnesota conference, in which Saumer has been an all-conference backfield selection for three years so he has another season ahead of him. He was captain in 1931 and has been re-elected.

More Growers Use Tomato Gradings

Tomato canners of Pennsylvania purchased approximately 13,500,000 pounds of tomatoes for manufacture during the past season under state inspection and on the basis of the United States grades. These tomatoes comprised approximately two-fifths of all that were grown for sale to canners by Pennsylvania farmers in 1931, and were delivered to twelve canneries. During the previous season 1,500,000 pounds were sold on the basis of grades of four canneries in the commonwealth.

"This new service has received the general approval of both the growers and canners," said D. M. James, supervising inspector, bureau of markets, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

"The average quality of the canned goods has been improved and the growers of high quality raw tomatoes have been able to realize greater returns than through selling the ungraded product."

The great flood is estimated to have occurred in 2348 B. C.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, (adv.)

Ten Incumbent Congressmen May Seek Five State Berths

Harrisburg, (AP).—The new congressional reapportionment of Pennsylvania, based on the 1930 census and effective this year, provides five districts in which incumbents may compete against each other.

This reapportionment reduced Pennsylvania's congressional delegation from 36 to 34. The districts in which present congressmen, if they desire re-election, must run against each other are:

The new second Philadelphia district in which Congressman James M. Beck, and Congressman Edward Lower Stokes, both republicans, reside.

The new Bucks-Lehigh ninth district in which Congressman Henry W. Watson, republican, Bucks, and Congressman Norton L. Lichtenwalter, democrat, Lehigh, now reside. In the event both decide to run for re-election, however, they may not oppose each other until next November as they would be on opposite sides of the fence at next April's primary election.

The new Schuylkill-Northumberland (thirteenth) district in which Congressman George F. Brumm, Schuylkill, and Representative Frederick W. Magrady, Northumberland, both republicans, reside.

The new Clearfield-Centre-Blair (twenty-third) district in which Representative J. Banks Kurtz, Blair, and Representative J. Mitchell Chase, Clearfield, both republicans, reside.

The new Armstrong, Indiana, Jefferson, Cambria (twenty-seventh) district in which Representative Nathan L. Strong, Indiana, and J. Russell Leech, Cambria, both republicans, reside.

This reapportionment created three new districts in which no congressman now resides, these being the fifth Philadelphia, Berks county fourteenth, and Montgomery county seventeenth districts.

Other changes made by the reapportionment follow:

Representative Harry C. Ransley, republican, elected in the old third Philadelphia district is now in the first Philadelphia district.

Representative James J. Connolly, republican, elected in the old fifth Philadelphia district is now in the third Philadelphia district.

Congressman not affected by the reapportionment so far as their new districts are concerned follow:

Fourth Philadelphia district, Benjamin M. Golder, republican, incumbent.

Sixth Philadelphia district, George A. Welsh, republican, incumbent.

Seventh Philadelphia district, George P. Darrow, republican, incumbent.

Eighth district, Delaware county, James Wolfenden, republican, incumbent.

Tenth district, Lancaster and Chester counties, J. Roland Kinzer, Lancaster republican, incumbent.

Eleventh district, Lackawanna county, Patrick J. Boland, democrat.

Twelfth district, Luzerne county, C. Murray Turpin, republican.

Fifteenth district, Bradford, Pike, Wayne, Susquehanna, Columbia, Montour, Sullivan and Wyoming counties, Louis T. McFadden, Bradford, republican.

Sixteenth district, Clinton, Lycoming, Potter, Tioga, McKean and Cameron counties, Robert F. Rich, Clinton, republican.

Eighteenth district, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin, Perry, Snyder, Bedford and Union counties, Edward M. Beers, Huntingdon, republican.

Nineteenth district, Cumberland, Dauphin and Lebanon counties, I. H. Douthett, Dauphin, republican.

Twentieth district, Warren, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Clarion and Elk counties, Thomas C. Cochran, Mercer, republican.

Twenty-first district, Northampton, Carbon and Monroe counties, William R. Coyle, Northampton, republican.

Twenty-second district, Adams, Franklin and York counties, Harry L. Haines, York, democrat.

Twenty-fourth district, Fayette and Somerset counties, Samuel A. Kendall, republican.

Twenty-fifth district, Green and Washington counties, Henry W. Temple, Washington, republican.

Twenty-eighth district, Beaver, Butler and Lawrence counties, J. Howard Swick, Beaver, republican.

Twenty-ninth district, Westmoreland county, Adams M. Wyant, republican.

Thirtieth district, Crawford and Erie counties, Milton W. Shreve, Erie, republican.

Thirty-first, Allegheny district, Edmund F. Erk, republican.

Thirty-second, Allegheny district, Clyde Kelly, republican.

Thirty-third, Allegheny district, Harry A. Estep, republican.

Thirty-fourth, Allegheny district, Guy E. Campbell, republican.

The reapportionment reduced the former 36 districts to 34 by the following changes:

Lehigh county was taken away from Berks in the old 14th district and added to Bucks county to form the new ninth, Berks remaining alone in the new fourteenth district.

Chester county was taken away from Delaware in the old eighth district and added to Lancaster, formerly alone in the tenth, to form the new tenth district, Delaware being left alone in the new eighth district.

Montgomery county was separated from Bucks county in the old ninth district to remain alone in the new seventeenth district.

Northumberland was taken out of the old 17th district and added to Schuylkill, formerly alone in the old 13th district, to form the new thirteenth district.

Columbia, Montour and Sullivan counties, formerly with Northumberland in the old 17th district, were added to Bradford, Pike, Wayne, Susquehanna and Wyoming counties to form the new 15th or Horseshoe district.

McKean and Cameron counties were taken from the old 23rd district and added to Clinton, Lycoming, Potter and Tioga in the old 16th district to form the new 16th district.

Franklin county was taken from the old 18th or shoestring district and added to York and Adams of the old 22nd district to form the new 22nd district. Bedford county was taken from Blair in the old 21st district to replace Franklin county in the new 18th district.

Clarion county was taken from the old 27th district and added to the old 28th district to form the new 20th district comprising Clarion, Elk, Forest, Venango, Warren and Mercer counties.

Centre and Clearfield from the old 23rd and Blair from the old 21st were combined to form the new 23rd district.

The old 29th district comprising Crawford and Erie counties remains unchanged but the old 30th district comprising Northampton, Carbon and Monroe counties is now the 21st district.

Cambria county, formerly the 20th district, was added to Armstrong, Indiana and Jefferson counties of the old 27th to form the new 27th district.

Westmoreland, formerly the 31st district, is now the 28th district.

The first seven districts are still in Philadelphia and 30th to 34th districts, inclusive, are still in Allegheny county although there are some boundary changes over the old arrangement.

ICE BOX ROLLS

Dinner Menu

Ham Loaf and Escalloped Potatoes
Ice Box Rolls Currant Jam
Fruit Salad French Dressing
Apple Pudding Cream
Coffee

Ham Loaf, Serving 6

1 pound smoked ham, chopped; 1 cup soft bread crumbs; 2 tablespoons chopped onions; 3 tablespoons chopped parsley; 2 tablespoons chopped celery; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup milk; 1 egg; 2 tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix ingredients and pour into buttered loaf pan. Bake 50 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold carefully and surround with sauce.

Sauce

3 tablespoons butter; 4 tablespoons flour; 1 2/3 cups milk; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon paprika; 1 hard cooked egg, sliced; 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Melt butter and add flour. Blend and add milk and cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add rest of ingredients and cook 1 minute. Pour over and around ham loaf.

Ice Box Rolls

1/2 cup lard and butter; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 cup boiling water; 1/2 cup sugar; 2 eggs; 1 cup cold water; 2 cakes yeast; 6 cups flour.

Mix lard and butter with salt and water. Let stand until lukewarm. Add sugar, eggs and cold water which has been standing 5 minutes with the yeast cakes which have been crumbled. Add flour. Mix well and place in greased bowl. Cover with waxed paper. Store in ice box. When rolls are desired, pinch off bits of dough and shape as desired. Place in pan and cover with cloth. Let rise until dough has doubled in size. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

To prevent crust from forming over tops of unbaked rolls or dough it is best to grease with soft butter or lard.

Fruit Salad, Serving 6

1 cup diced pineapple; 1 cup diced grapefruit; 1 cup diced oranges. Mix and chill fruits. Drain and serve on lettuce.

Quiz Woman In Death Of Four

Youngstown, Ohio, Jan. 13 (AP).—A 55-year-old woman was questioned Monday night about the deaths of four men in her household in the last six years.

She was taken into custody late Monday after a neighbor told police he believed she had killed "four husbands and two children," burying their bodies in a garden. She was booked on suspicion at police headquarters as officers sought to verify the allegations. She denied all accusations.

The woman told reporters her first husband died six years ago, leaving no insurance. A second died in Massillon two years ago, leaving $1,000 in insurance. A boarder who fell dead on the way to work, and another boarder, 72, who died in her home December 11, 1930, each left her $1,000 in insurance, she said.

She said nothing of the two children.

EX-GRID STAR A FIGHT MANAGER

Adding the prize ring to his list of ventures in the sports world, Bruce Caldwell (standing), former Yale all-American football star, recently acquired the managership of Jimmie Quinn of Norwich, Conn. Quinn, 126-pounder, has fought and won eight pro fights. Bruce is a restaurant owner, baseball player, ball club owner, football coach and now a fight manager.

Reparations and War Debts Big Topics at Lausanne Meet

By Reid Monfort

Washington (AP).—To cancel or not to cancel. To revise or not to revise?

These are the questions uppermost in the minds of world leaders as the Young plan signatories prepare to gather at Lausanne January 18 to consider anew the problem of intergovernmental reparations and war debts.

The conference was called chiefly as a result of the report of the Young plan advisory committee stating that Germany would be unable to resume reparations payments on the present scale at the end of the moratorium. The United States will not be represented.

Some observers see justice and others injustice in an arrangement by which the children of children yet unborn will pay taxes to square the accounts of the world war.

Britain Suggests Policy

When hostilities ended, the British government proposed surrendering its share of German reparations and "writing off, through one great transaction, the whole body of inter-allied indebtedness."

Generally, a cool reception greeted the proposal. The late Lord Balfour, then secretary of foreign affairs, suggested if this was not feasible, Britain would collect from her war debtors only what she needed to pay the United States. That has been the English policy since the war.

America already has made considerable revision in funding agreements with her debtors. "Capacity to pay" has guided her in determining whether revision was warranted. The administration, however, opposes cancellation although favorable to a re-examination of the capacity to pay. Congress is against either cancellation or revision.

France has vigorously opposed any revisions of the Young plan. Germany would welcome cancellation.

Here are some of the arguments advanced by advocates of cancellation or drastic revision of debts and reparations:

1. A more equitable distribution of the world gold supply would be encouraged since the chief need for gold today arises from its use in international political payments, the profits of which accrue to creditor nations.

2. No onerous burden would be imposed on the American people as world war debt payments total even in their peak year less than one-eighth of the present federal expenditure.

3. The "psychological" effect of the actions.

4. "Uneven" burdens on debtors, under the present settlement, is unfair.

5. A "moral" basis, because the allies were our associates in arms, with the same goal.

6. Infusion of new life into United States export trade.

Opponents Cite Disadvantages

Adversaries of a drastic change counter with the following argument:

1. The smallness of payments compared with federal expenditures and American foreign trade is a point against cancellation or revision rather than for it, since, by similar logic, no heavy burden is imposed. Former Ambassador Houghton has estimated that present service on the debts is less than 2 per cent of the budgets of nations paying the United States money.

2. Banks, investment trusts, and other institutions, as holders of private debt, would be the principal beneficiaries since they have loaned private funds to Germany and her European creditors.

3. Foreign trade is not hampered by the war debts since it is estimated that their payments are less than two per cent of the total volume of international commerce.

4. Compared with the $200,000,000 paid the United States last year in principal and interest by her three most important debtors, $1,117,000,000 were spent on armaments by them during the same period.

5. As the debts were contracted in good faith "cancellationists" would be robbing the unborn of property which belongs to them.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

C. Paddock may get points for being in there trying, but the one-time chug-chug boy of the cinder paths has about as much chance of crashing the Olympic sprint team this year as the old lady from Dubuque.

The blond Texas who raced into the sprint spotlight in California has always been a game runner, but four years ago he was barely able to make the Olympic team as the fourth entry at 200 meters. He was nowhere in the competition at Amsterdam.

That was his third Olympiad, an extraordinary achievement in itself. No doubt the thought of the games as Los Angeles this year is father to the idea of his taking another whirl.

The prospects of any veterans such as Paddock making a comeback in the Olympic features is further reduced by the fact that only three individual entries, instead of four, will be permitted in each event.

Undisputed Champ

Russ Newland's nomination for the hard-luck prize of 1931 goes to the top of the list. It concerns George Sharkey, old-time San Francisco sportsman; former manager of Al Norton, heavyweight, and one of Jack Dempsey's close friends. The sequence of his series of misfortunes follows:

1. This fall he broke his ankle.

2. Because water was scarce early this fall he had to buy several hundred dollars' worth for the rice fields of his duck shooting club at Colusa, California.

3. Insurance ran out on his duck club house.

4. Next day, before he could renew insurance, club house burned down.

5. All the cash money he had, several hundred dollars, was in paper bills and burned with the building.

6. Brake on his car loosened and car ran off a bridge into a slough.

7. Then heaviest rainfall of years set in and completely flooded his duck club grounds. This after he had bought water.

8. One of his crutches broke and he re-fractured his ankle.

9. When he was laid up the second time, he got the hives.

Sad Days

The tipoff on the times is Jimmy Johnston's prediction that the "gate" for the Schmeling-Walker championship match at Miami will draw around $250,000.

Jimmy has acquired the superstitious habit of under-estimating the receipts within the past year. No doubt he hopes the figure will pass $300,000. The fight will be a howling success if it does.

Less than five years ago Gene Tunney's end of the receipts alone touched $1,000,000 for the last of the Dempsey bouts.

Three years ago the Stribling-Sharkey affair drew a $400,000 "gate" at Miami. Scott and Sharkey drew $193,262 in 1930, Carnera and Maloney $43,000 last winter.

"Why don't you set your Stove league doping out which is the most popular sport and how and why?" asks William Upham Swan, of the Boston Swans, better known to yachtsmen of all harbors by his cable address of "Bilswan."

No sooner said than done, Bill. The Stove league machinery already is in motion, and we should have the returns shortly. Meanwhile let's hear from Bill:

"I suspect most every one will pick baseball, but I think you will find that every boy in the north plays hockey when he can get a chance. Certainly more of them have hockey sticks than football togs, tennis racquets or golf clubs. As for yachts, it will be pretty far down on the list, although over two thousand small boats manned by at least three people sailed races in New England last summer.

"No one has ever compared one sport with another, so consider my 'Relativity in Sport.'

"All sports can involve these four attributes: Strength, skill, strategy and luck.

"Take football, which may be said to combine 20% strength, 30% skill, 45% strategy and 5% luck.

"Yachting may be said to have 5% strength, 50% skill, 20% strategy and 25% luck.

"Tennis: 20% strength (stamina), 30% skill, 45% strategy and 5% luck."

Good Big Man

It does not necessarily follow in basketball, Phog Allen remarks, that the good big man is better than the good little man, but out at the University of North Dakota they have converted a giant football tackle into a first class basketball player.

His name is Ted Meinover. He stands six feet seven inches and weighs 240 pounds. He must be a trifle shy, however, for we read in the Grand Forks Herald:

"Lots of people thought Ted was too big and heavy to make a basketball player; but, although he can't move as quickly as some of the smaller performers, he is bound to be effective when he learns the best manner to use his great advantage in size. He is not slow either, Ted can shoot, and he is getting over being nervous on the floor. When he reaches a point of confidence the big fellow is going to make things very annoying for the opposition."

9.4 Yards A Whack

It's a trifle late, but still worth noting, as Roy Hendrickson remarks, that Sylvan Saumer was considerable of a halfback in three years for St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minnesota.

He carried the ball 343 times in three years' play, gaining 3,027 yards—an average of 9.4 yards per try. His total yardage is well over 30 times the length of the gridiron.

Saumer, a six-footer, who weighs about 180 in moleskins, passes and punts in addition to being St. Olaf's star runner. Last year he also called signals, which cut down the number of times he carried the ball.

Freshmen may play in the Minnesota conference, in which Saumer has been an all-conference backfield selection for three years, so he has another season ahead of him. He was captain in 1931 and has been re-elected.

More Growers Use Tomato Gradings

Pomato canners of Pennsylvania purchased approximately 13,500,000 pounds of tomatoes for manufacture during the past season under state inspection and on the basis of the United States grades. These tomatoes comprised approximately two-fifths of all that were grown for sale to canners by Pennsylvania farmers in 1931, and were delivered to twelve canneries. During the previous season 1,500,000 pounds were sold on the basis of grades set by four canneries in the commonwealth.

"This new service has received the general approval of both the growers and canners," said D. M. James, supervising inspector, bureau of markets, Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

"The average quality of the canned goods has been improved and the growers of high quality raw tomatoes have been able to realize greater returns than through selling the ungraded product."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Removed Abscess: On Monday afternoon Drs. Stewart and Dalbey removed a large abscess from the back of the right ear of Charles the little four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ogden, Steinwehr avenue. The operation was a success and the little fellow is getting along nicely.

Will Erect Handsome Building: For some time the Directors of the First National Bank, this place, have been contemplating the erection of a new building, and at a recent meeting took final action, deciding to erect a modern and handsome structure.

The institution is doing a great business, as is well known, and more commodious and convenient quarters for its many customers is necessary.

The building will be three stories high and occupy the present site. A store room will be equipped with a frontage on Center Square. The third floor will be conveniently fitted up for the Gettys Lodge I. O. O. F.

Marriages: Fisher—Chapman: Dec. 27, at Ardentsville, by Rev. Theodore C. Hesson, Robert E. Fisher, Biglerville, to Miss Minerva Chapman, Orrtanna.

Stout—Spangler: Nov. 28, at York, by Rev. A. R. Steck, Wm. H. Stout, to Miss Mary E. Spangler, both of Gettysburg.

Farmers Flouting: Charles A. B. Howard, of Straban township, plowed five acres of ground for last week on Monday and Tuesday of last week. We have been informed that other farmers have been engaged in turning the soil. Remarkable for this time of the year.

Received Panama: The ever happy Jacob Toot, of Straban township, received a handsome and durable Christmas gift from William E. Weigle in the shape of a Panama hat. Mr. Toot feels justly proud of the gift, it being the "genuine article", right from Panama.

Election of Officers: At the annual business meeting of the Gettysburg Building and Loan Association held Saturday evening, the following officers were elected: Pres. P. M. Bickle; V. Pres. Calvin Hamilton; Sec. C. H. Huff; Treas. E. M. Bender; Attorney J. L. Butt; Directors, A. Hammond, E. E. Slaybaugh, D. M. Wolf, John C. Lower, Dr. T. C. Billheimer.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Adams County Mutual Fire Insurance Company held Monday, these directors were re-elected: D. P. McPherson, H. C. Picking, W. R. White, C. G. Beales, J. S. Miller, J. W. Taughinbaugh, J. D. Neiderer, D. R. Musselman, C. L. Longsdorf, Abia Smucker, John N. Hersh and G. H. Buehler.

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;

Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the Most High.

God is in the midst of her: she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early. The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttereth his voice, the earth melted.

The Lord of hosts is with us: the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.

Come, behold the works of the Lord, what desolations he hath made in the earth. He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire.

Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted in the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth. The Lord of hosts is with us: the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.—Psalm 46.

HISTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

A Chronological Review of Things That Have Gone Before, And The Trials And Tribulations Of Our Ancestors, As Published Serially For The Benefit Of Gettysburg Times' Readers.

Adams County Medical Society

This society was formed in Gettysburg, June 14, 1873, by Drs. R. B. Elderdice, Robert Horner, W. J. McClure, J. L. Baehr, A. Holtz, C. Thompson and J. W. C. O'Neal. A. Holtz, chairman; R. B. Elderdice, secretary; J. L. Baehr, treasurer. There were then about thirty-five practicing physicians in the county. At the regular meeting in June, 1873, the attendants were Drs. H. S. Huber, J. P. B. Breneman, W. C. Stem, E. W. Mumma, Charles Horner, R. N. Meisenholder, F. C. Wolf, A. B. Dill. Permanent officers elected: Robert Horner, president; H. S. Huber and A. Holtz, vice presidents; R. B. Elderdice, recording secretary; William J. McClure, corresponding secretary; J. W. C. O'Neal, treasurer.

June 6, 1881, the legislature passed an act requiring the prothonotary of each county to provide a book in which shall be kept a registry of each practicing physician in medical surgery in the county; the record keeping an account of the deaths or removals from the county of physicians. The act goes on to specify, the qualifications in point of medical education each practitioner shall have before he can practice. Any one, however, in the continuous practice since 1871 can continue practice without the qualifications required by law.

Present licensed practitioners in the county are as follows: George B. Aiken, a native of Baltimore, who received the degree of M. D. at the University of Maryland, March 10, 1836, settled in McSherrystown, where he has been continuously in the practice.

James B. Combs, nativity, Huntington county, Penn.; residence, Round Hill, Huntington township, took his degree at the Medical College of Ohio, March 1, 1851, and also graduated in the Medical and Surgical University of Philadelphia, February 23, 1872, and for some years practiced medicine in Baltimore.

E. W. Cashman, a native of Bensenville, Adams County, was residing in York Springs; graduated in the University of Pennsylvania, May 1, 1886.

Daniel L. Baker, resides in East Berlin. Aaron L. Bishop, native of Littlestown, where he has continued to reside all his life. A graduate of the University of New York, March 1, 1847.

John C. Bush, born in Baltimore, graduated in University of Maryland in March, 1854; resides in Mountjoy township, where he has had a continuous residence.

Abraham Piere Beam, of Franklin county, a graduate of Jefferson Medical college, March, 1876; residence, Fairfield.

Jesse P. Breneman, native of York county; graduate of university of New York. He located in Ardentsville and finally Gettysburg.

John G. Brown, born in Adams county; residence, Hampton, in this county. He graduated in the University of Maryland March 1, 1878.

David A. Diller, native of York county. He took his degree in the Eclectic Medical college of Pennsylvania April 21, 1854. He resided in York county until 1859, and since then has resided in York Springs, this county.

Howard L. Diehl, a native of Littlestown; residence, Gettysburg; graduate of Hahnemann Medical college, of Philadelphia, March 1, 1876.

John R. Dickson, John Russell Dickson, born in Adams county; residence, Straban township; received the degree of M.D. at the University of Pennsylvania, March 15, 1880.

A. B. Dill graduated in Bellevue Medical college in 1855. His family were early settlers in this county.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
Author of "You Can't Win" and "Just Around the Corner"

OUR FRIEND—THE TREE

WHEN Joyce Kilmer said that "only God could make a tree," he made God so big to us all who have for so long loved trees! I could not live in a country where there were no trees. Not only are they things of great beauty, but the inspiration of their lives is an ever present benediction. I shall never forget my first view of the giant trees of California. I remember one day stopping for luncheon beside a huge grove—each tree towering so high that I thought for a moment that I stood before a miracle—as, of course, I did.

Through every stress of storm and change of weather the trees mostly stand. For years and years they thrive against all odds. Their branches keep reaching out and up. They spread. They are forever growing outward. Each unfertile branch, like small fingers, wanting as though to touch something. Each sturdy trunk a monument to beauty and to the warmth of the earth's heart beneath.

There is a vitality to every tree, as well as an atmosphere of gentleness and wonder. I can understand why it is that artists so love to draw and sketch and paint them. They are so full of meaning and character. And the changing seasons so enrich their varied beauty.

Of all the inanimate things in nature, none quite approach the trees. They are so friendly—such wealthy givers of comfort and silent power. They refresh and re-build so much in us that the world wears away. I do not boast of owned lands and acres—but I do enlarge with pride at the temporary ownership of scores of trees, of every description. Their solace, like that of a surging, silent love—touching the scars in one's nature, healing them, and covering them from all view.

The past summer, in my little island home, I used to rise early and walk out among them, fondling the reaching sprigs of the smaller trees, or the overhanging branches of the larger ones. And there seemed to be an answering, somehow—in silent tree talk.

When everything else seems to fail us, we have these never failing friends—our friends to reassure and resupport our faith.

TREE AND MAN

The oak tree never quits its place
To ask about a neighbor's care;
A thing of majesty and grace,
Whose leafy arms seem raised in prayer.

It stands two hundred years or more
Against the storms of winter stout,
While man is broken down before
The sands of seventy years run out.

From the first moment of its birth
Until a rotted log it dies,
Its roots draw sweetness from the earth,
Its leaves draw nectar from the skies.

Patient, untroubled and serene,
A tree, with age in splendor grows,
Because on it no grief has been,
Such as the fretted mortal knows.

Such as the fretted mortal knows.

Poor man must roam the world afar

And give his strength to many needs;
Pride, pomp and place and pity are
Not only must he suffer pain,
But God has fashioned him so fair
That none may cry to him in vain.
Even a stranger's hurt he'll share.

The span of mortal life is brief.
The oak tree's long outlives us all,
Yet better 'tis to suffer grief:
To weary oft at duty's call;
To wear our strength and courage out
Against the tides of human fears
Than live and never ask about
The cause of sorrow's blinding tears.

About New York

New York—Add new rackets: A fellow appears to be completely "out," sleeping on the sidewalk or doorstep. Finally one of the passersby stops to lift his head and inquire why he doesn't move along.

The chiller mumbles something, usually with an alcoholic accent, about "wishing he could go home," but he lives in the suburbs and somebody or other has taken his last cent away from him. Usually the Samaritan, having gone so far, goes further and shells out the required change.

The sleeper then totters around a block or so, and sinks in another spot to repeat.

I got the information on this racket from an Eighth avenue cop last night, when I called his attention to a man who appeared to be in the throes of illness in a side-street doorway.

"Is that guy pulling that again?" snarled the cop. "I'll break his neck."

Henry L. Meeklen is an accomplished musician. In Baltimore, his home town, he plays the piano in an orchestra of highly accomplished amateurs that could drag down top figures in concert or vaudeville.

Al St. John, the comic, working in a movie short in Brooklyn with Ray Huling's trained seal, Charlie, spent a hunk of his pay check buying fish to keep in good with his supporting player.

Frank Bruen, formerly general manager of the Hialeah Park track, owned by Joseph E. Widner, suddenly left Widner's employ to become director of a new racetrack at Coral Gables, Florida.

There has been considerable speculation as to who the "angel" of Coral Gables might be, but the "inside" turfmen around here profess to have known all along that it is "Wild Bill" Dwyer. Bruen once was directing manager of Madison Square Garden.

Friends Assert French Premier Is Seeking Foreign Office In Paris.

By Joseph E. Sharkey

Paris (AP)—Parisians who claim to be "in the know" are picking Pierre Laval as the eventual successor of Aristide Briand, France's apostle of peace, who has so long guided the policies of the French foreign office.

Whether the present head of the government will attain this place in the near future or forego it for the time being because of political considerations arising out of present circumstances is a moot subject.

Laval's friends say, however, that he nourishes the ambition to assume Briand's burdens now that the latter has been obliged, by advancing years and decreasing health, to lay aside the heavy loads inherent with the portfolio in the Quai d'Orsay.

Washington Trip Helps
This responsibility has become greater as France of late has emerged as a "leading nation" and, to French eyes at least, has appeared as having actually received a mandate to assume the van in putting Europe on its feet economically, politically and financially.

The position of French foreign minister, always important in the eyes of Europe, took on new significance and eminence as the result of Laval's journey to Washington. Coming on the heels of his jaunts to London and Berlin, the American visit brought him, like a meteor, to the forefront of French political life. As one French writer put it:

"Up to the time of the great adventure of the visit to the United States the French knew that M. Laval was a hard worker and capable, but it had not realized his force of character and his capacity of resistance."

Laval Is Tenacious
Laval is seen also as successor of Poincare in the domain of tenacious, bulldog adherence to a program—a program conceived to further the interests of France, and to insist upon international recognition of France's rights.

Behind all the economic, financial and political apprehensions of France there is one which stands out above all others, and that is the possibility of another invasion of French soil.

Laval is held to have removed that fear from French hearts by his trip to Washington. Frenchmen believe he achieved there recognition of the fact that France is entitled to keep her army and navy at their present strength until an increase in the guaranty of security justifies reductions.

They look to the Geneva disarmament conference for further consolidation of this position.

Likes Foreign Problems
Premier Laval is greatly attracted by foreign problems, and in the program for European construction on which he has taken the initiative, the relations with foreign powers, including the United States, occupy naturally the first place.

That is why it is predicted that Laval will pass to the foreign office and from there direct his great project of French continental European leadership.

State Benefits From Treatment Given Children

"The work of rehabilitation among crippled children at the Elizabethtown hospital," said Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, today, "has for its ultimate purpose the changing of the child so afflicted from a state liability to a community asset."

Neglected and permitted to reach adult years so handicapped as to be unable to earn a livelihood, they become burdens upon society, and in many cases have to be cared for by some public institution at the taxpayer's expense. In a majority of the cases admitted to the hospital for crippled children, the corrective work done by the surgeons of that institution, together with other forms of treatment used there, results in such vast improvement that they can go out into the busy world, secure an education, and fit themselves for useful careers.

Expense Small
The expense of this corrective work is so microscopic, compared to the outlay that would have to be made in later years for their support that considering the matter only in the light of dollars and cents, the commonwealth's program for these deficient youngsters is a vast saver of money to the taxpayers of the state.

"The relatively small amount expended from the public treasury, in the provision for this relief, is a mere pittance compared to the vastly larger sums that would be required for the care of adult cripples who might later become burdens upon the state, because of their uncorrected physical handicaps."

AERO QUINTET COPS ANOTHER

Fleet-Wing Cagers Defeat Hagerstown Outfit For Second Time.

Gettysburg's Fleet-Wing quintet made it five in a row Tuesday night when they defeated the Kay Jewellers, of Hagerstown, on the latter's floor, for the second time this season, this time by the score of 33-30.

The Kay Jewellers started off with a rush and racked up 11 points before the Fleet-Wing tribe could score. Then Charley Gelbert cut the meshes for a double-decker that started the locals. Gelbert put up another clever game for Gettysburg along with Hen Bream. Between them the pair counted for 21 points.

With H. Bream and Gelbert scoring freely, the gas men slowly forged into the lead and at half time led 17-14.

Sew Up Tilt
Early in the second half the Fleet-Wing dribblers secured a big lead and at one time led 31-20. In the waning minutes of the game the locals eased up a bit and the final score read, 33-30. Shaw was the high scorer of the evening with 15 points.

The entire Fleet-Wing squad played a good game with the playing of the Cardinal star and Hen Bream dominating. The team worked smoothly after a poor start and showed great improvement over other exhibitions.

St. Mary's of York will be the next opponents of the Fleet-Wing team. They hold the only victory scored over the locals. The game will be played on the hotel floor Friday night.

Scientist To Be Honored

Madison, Wis. (AP).—The memory of Dr. Stephen M. Babcock, Wisconsin scientist and inventor of the butterfat test, will be honored by the planting of hollyhock gardens in at least 44 states.

Seed for these gardens, to be planted on grounds of agricultural colleges and experiment stations, was gathered this fall from the back yard of Dr. Babcock.

A Babcock garden is being planted at the University of Göttingen, Germany, where Dr. Babcock completed his training, as well as at Tufts college, where the scientist also attended.

of its operation, the hospital has had over 300 admissions, and of that number more than 200 have been discharged and sent back to their homes, very greatly benefited—some even beyond the highest hopes of the physicians and surgeons when they are admitted. Many have been restored to almost normal physical condition."

PREP PASSERS BEAT YORK FIVE

Academy Quintet Opens Season With 18 To 15 Victory.

Gettysburg academy's basketball team opened its season in a promising manner Tuesday night when they invaded York to defeat the strong Thompson's business school quintet, 18-15.

Coach Zeigler's team displayed much ability and should develop into a classy aggregation. The close guarding of both teams kept the score close and the outcome always in doubt.

Hileman, with nine points, led the assault for Gettysburg while the entire York county school shared evenly in the scoring.

The next game for the Orange and Blue passers will be with the strong Malvern prep quintet here on Saturday.

Kansas Champ Fears Rivals In Big 6 Race

Kansas City (AP).—Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, dean of midwestern basketball coaches, nominates his own champion Kansas university Jayhawkers, Kansas State and Iowa State as the chief contenders for the 1932 Big Six conference basketball title.

He looks for trouble from other sources, chiefly Missouri, but his prophecy regarding the neighbor Aggies approached realization in the two pre-season exhibition games played between the Jayhawkers and Kansas State.

The university team won each game by a margin of two points, while the Aggie star center, Henry Cronkite, was absent due to injuries sustained in a charity football game.

Cronkite and the other two big stars of the Aggie football squad now playing basketball—Ralph Graham, sophomore, and Elden Auker, veteran captain—are feared particularly by Allen because of their unusual stature and power.

To back them up Coach Charles Corsaut of Kansas State has several additional letter men.

Corsaut prophesied his Wildcats would lose most of their earlier games, but that they would give any team "an interesting evening" by the time the conference race opens January 8 and 9.

Allen is looking to the sophomore ranks to fill out a squad built around three veterans—Ted O'Leary, forward; Lee Page, guard; and Bill Johnson, elongated center.

Coach Louis E. Menze of Iowa State has four veterans at work and a fifth will report for the second semester. Heading the squad is "Lightning" Jack Roadcap, leading scorer of the conference when the Cyclones finished fifth last season, now at guard.

To Teach Value Of Nature Study

Conservation of natural resources including forests, streams, scenery, game animals and birds will be made a part of the future education of the youth of the state.

James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, today announced that his department is preparing a course of study in science for the schools of the state in which special stress is laid upon the duty of the public to provide food for game life, the importance of hunting strictly within the law and the elements of true sportsmanship. At the present time, Pennsylvania is one of the foremost states in the union in its care of wild life. That the schools are guiding the thinking of the young people in this direction will do much, it is believed, toward assuring the continuation and development of a type of education all too little emphasized in the past, it is believed.

Baudette, Minnesota, will be linked with Rainy River, Ontario, by a new international toll bridge over Rainy River.

Corporations Are Warned

Secretary of Revenue Clyde L. King calls to the attention of corporations who have changed their accounting year from a calendar year basis to a fiscal year basis just what the law requires of them.

Many corporations believe by such change they have authority under the laws of Pennsylvania to file their tax reports on the same basis, the secretary said. This is erroneous. The act of assembly provides that before a corporation can report and file its tax reports with the commonwealth on a fiscal year basis, it must first procure permission to do so from the secretary of revenue.

"Where such permission is not requested immediately after the change of the accounting year, the department of revenue has no alternative other than to demand that a report for the year in which the change was made be filed on a calendar year basis," Secretary King declared.

Penalty Added
"Corporations believing they can use fiscal year figures without asking the authority of the secretary of revenue, wait until the close of their fiscal year, which in most cases brings them beyond the statutory period for filing tax reports under the calendar year basis. This means the department of revenue must assess a penalty, and under the law there is no way by which it can be avoided."

"If a corporation has changed its tax year during the last calendar year it should at once file with the department of revenue the necessary forms for reporting on a fiscal year basis, so that the department may not be compelled to enforce the penalty provisions as provided by law."

MONEY SMUGGLING BECOMES FINE ART ON SPAIN'S BORDER

San Sebastian, Spain (AP).—Carmen, that alluring operative to bacco smuggler, could have wished for no better accomplices than those who today try to run cash out of Spain.

Since the republic forbade removal of more than 5,000 pesetas (about $500) at a time, customs guards along this border have struggled against new reaches of smuggling ingenuity.

Carrier pigeons have fluttered into the wrong hands, both legs padded with notes of high denomination. Customs guards have learned to look with suspicion upon the extra tires of automobiles.

PROFIT FROM LION KILL

Redding, Cal. (AP).—C. W. Laidshaw collected $180 from the state and $35 from the county here for four days' work. His job is to track down and kill predatory animals and in the four days he bagged seven mountain lions, a record kill for that length of time.

West Point was first occupied as a military post January 20, 1778.

ADAMS RAISES CUSTODY ORDER

Authorizes Surrender Of Accused Naval Men To Honolulu Circuit Court.

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP).—Surrender of a naval officer and two enlisted men to the Honolulu circuit court for trial on a murder charge was authorized Tuesday night by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy.

This was announced by the navy department after a long series of repercussions in the capital from developments in crime-stirred Honolulu.

Rear-Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., requested the secretary to approve an understanding with Circuit Court Judge Christy that the prisoners—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two enlisted men—would be turned over to the circuit court when requested.

Held Aboard Naval Ship

The navy men, charged with the murder of a young Hawaiian accused with four other men of attacking Mrs. Massie, are being held aboard the receiving ship Alton, at Pearl Harbor, where they were confined Friday after their arrest.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, also is under arrest. Earlier Tuesday, Secretary Adams said the navy was holding the men only for civil authorities and that they would be turned over on demand. He added the department was to be notified first, however, so it could keep in touch with developments.

Meantime, Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, went on record as opposing a change of venue for the trial of the four Americans.

Secretary Wilbur, whose department handles insular affairs, asserted he was opposed to asking any change of venue in the case. His statement followed a conference with President Hoover. He said he discussed the Hawaiian situation generally with the president after the question had come up at the cabinet meeting Tuesday morning.

Political Score Card For 1931
Reveals Year Of Overturns;
Hoover In International Eye

By Byron Price
Washington (AP)—Hopeful that brighter skies will smile on 1932, the American government is turning its back without regret on a year of tense endeavor and anxious vigil.

Nationally, restless 1931 has been a time of political overturn, of social apprehension, of constant buttressing of public confidence against ill winds of depression and unemployment.

Internationally, the year's swift-moving tides of discontent have brought the United States ever nearer the center of affairs.

At home and abroad, it has been a year of pent-up nervous tension. In Washington, for the first time since the war period, sweeping measures of national policy have been inaugurated by the common consent of all political parties.

So it was with the Hoover moratorium, perhaps the most spectacular of the president's efforts for world stability. So it was with the emergency measures to release frozen credits. So it was with the patient and zealous preparations to lead the world toward disarmament in 1932.

Hoover Meets Difficulties
Not all Mr. Hoover's policies, however, have received a similar reception. On the whole, the year saw his difficulties accumulate.

After a series of republican upsets, a democratic house took its place on Capitol hill. A mounting treasury deficit impelled the administration to ask, on the eve of a presidential campaign, for a tax increase.

Determined White House efforts to keep appropriations down led to much irritation and, in the case of the navy, kindled a high-blazing public controversy.

The republican tariff came under fire, and a battle developed against the president's refusal to countenance treasury payments to the unemployed.

Democratic Hopes Scar
With it all, however, the year saw Mr. Hoover's renomination become a foregone conclusion, at the same time that democratic hopes of victory in 1932 were being fed by democratic sweeps in by-elections in far-scattered sections.

Convinced that American prosperity never would return in full measure until other nations stabilized their economies, President Hoover proposed in June to help the whole family of nations by letting Europe forget her reparations and war debt payments for a year.

The world was electrified, and a series of new discussions of economic reconstruction revolved around Washington.

Statesmen Visit Hoover
Secretaries Mellon and Stimson went abroad and were central figures at a seven-power financial conference at London. Premier Laval of France and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy visited the president here.

When a conflict developed in Manchuria peace overtures were made by the League of Nations at Geneva, and for the first time an

His device, attached to an automobile, is a tall, shaft-like apparatus, somewhat resembling part of a threshing machine.

Fail To Attract

Coeur D'Alene, Idaho (AP)—This lake-locked city's dream of becoming the "divorce capital" of the northwest has faded.

When the Idaho legislature passed the 90-day law nearly a year ago, business men started elaborate preparations to attract divorce seekers. Heavily timbered mountains for hiking, a crystal clear lake for boating and swimming, a variety of winter sports and climate in general were to be capitalized. But Nevada passed a "six-weeks law."

Nearly a year after the Idaho law was passed an observer and optimist of a year ago said, "We've had only one promising prospect. She was from New York, and we understood she came here for a divorce. Then one day her husband came found their children in the park and drove away with them. The woman left next day."

The Marquette university hockey team for the second straight year invaded northern Minnesota and Ontario for a series of games during the Christmas holidays.

Political Score Card For 1931 Reveals Year Of Overturns; Hoover In International Eye

By Byron Price
Washington (AP)—Hopeful that brighter skies will smile on 1932, the American government is turning its back without regret on a year of tense endeavor and anxious vigil.

Nationally, restless 1931 has been a time of political overturn, of social apprehension, of constant buttressing of public confidence against ill winds of depression and unemployment.

Internationally, the year's swift-moving tides of discontent have brought the United States ever nearer the center of affairs.

At home and abroad, it has been a year of pent-up nervous tension. In Washington, for the first time since the war period, sweeping measures of national policy have been inaugurated by the common consent of all political parties.

So it was with the Hoover moratorium, perhaps the most spectacular of the president's efforts for world stability. So it was with the emergency measures to release frozen credits. So it was with the patient and zealous preparations to lead the world toward disarmament in 1932.

Hoover Meets Difficulties
Not all Mr. Hoover's policies, however, have received a similar reception. On the whole, the year saw his difficulties accumulate.

After a series of republican upsets, a democratic house took its place on Capitol hill. A mounting treasury deficit impelled the administration to ask, on the eve of a presidential campaign, for a tax increase.

Determined White House efforts to keep appropriations down led to much irritation and, in the case of the navy, kindled a high-blazing public controversy.

The republican tariff came under fire, and a battle developed against the president's refusal to countenance treasury payments to the unemployed.

Democratic Hopes Scar
With it all, however, the year saw Mr. Hoover's renomination become a foregone conclusion, at the same time that democratic hopes of victory in 1932 were being fed by American representative sat in the league council and entered its debates.

Thus does the year-end find America gravitating toward closer and closer contact with the problems to the east and to the west.

His device, attached to an automobile, is a tall, shaft-like apparatus, somewhat resembling part of a threshing machine.

LAVAL PICKED AS SUCCESSOR TO A. BRIAND

Friends Assert French Premier Is Seeking Foreign Office In Paris.

By Joseph E. Sharkey
Paris (AP)—Parisians who claim to be "in the know" are picking Pierre Laval as the eventual successor of Aristide Briand, France's apostle of peace, who has so long guided the policies of the French foreign office.

Whether the present head of the government will attain this place in the near future or forego it for the time being because of political considerations arising out of present circumstances is a moot subject.

Laval's friends say, however, that he nourishes the ambition to assume Briand's burdens now that the latter has been obliged, by advancing years and decreasing health, to lay aside the heavy loads inherent with the portfolio in the Quai d'Orsay.

Washington Trip Helps
This responsibility has become greater as France of late has emerged as a "leading nation" and, to French eyes at least, has appeared as, having actually received a mandate to assume the van in putting Europe on its feet economically, politically and financially.

The position of French foreign minister, always important in the eyes of Europe, took on new significance and eminence as the result of Laval's journey to Washington. Coming on the heels of his jaunts to London and Berlin, the American visit brought him, like a meteor, to the forefront of French political life. As one French writer put it:

"Up to the time of the great adventure of the visit to the United States the French knew that M. Laval was a hard worker and capable, but it had not realized his force of character and his capacity of resistance."

Laval is seen also as successor of Poincaré in the domain of tenacious, bulldog adherence to a program—a program, conceived, to further the interests of France, and to insist upon international recognition of France's rights.

Behind all the economic, financial and political apprehensions of France there is one which stands out above all others, and that is the possibility of another invasion of French soil.

Laval is held to have removed that fear from French hearts by his trip to Washington. Frenchmen believe he achieved there recognition of the fact that France is entitled to keep her army and navy at their present strength until an increase in the guaranty of security justifies reductions.

They look to the Geneva disarmament conference for further consolidation of this position.

Likes Foreign Problems
Premier Laval is greatly attracted by foreign problems, and in the program for European construction on which he has taken the initiative, the relations with foreign powers, including the United States, occupy a naturally the first place.

That is why it is predicted that Laval will pass to the foreign office and, from there direct his great project of French continental European leadership.

State Benefits From Treatment Given Children
The work of rehabilitation among crippled children at the Elizabethtown hospital, said Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health today, "has for its ultimate purpose the changing of the child so afflicted from a state liability to a community asset."

Neglected and permitted to reach adult years so handicapped as to be unable to earn a livelihood, they become burdens upon society, and in many cases have to be cared for by some public institution at the taxpayer's expense. In a majority of the cases admitted to the hospital for crippled children, the corrective work done by the surgeons of that institution, together with other forms of treatment, has resulted in such marked improvement that they can go out into the world, become an asset and not a burden to themselves or to the community.

Expense Small
"The expense of this corrective work is so microscopic compared to the cost of care that would have to be made in later years for their support, that considering the matter only in the light of dollars and cents, the community's program for these afflicted youngsters is a vast saver of money to the taxpayers of the state."

"The relatively small amount expended from the public treasury in the provision for this work, is a mere pittance compared to the vastly larger sums that would be required for the care of adult cripples, who might later become burdens upon the state, because of their uncorrected physical handicaps."

"During the first twenty months

AERO QUINTET COPS ANOTHER

Fleet-Wing Cagers Defeat Hagerstown Outfit For Second Time.

Gettysburg's Fleet-Wing quintet made it five in a row Tuesday night when they defeated the Kay Jewelers of Hagerstown, on the latter's floor, for the second time this season, this time by the score of 33-30.

The Kay Jewelers started off with a rush and racked up 11 points before the Fleet-Wing tribe could score. Then Charley Gelbert cut the meshes for a double-decker that started the locals. Gelbert put up another clever game for Gettysburg along with Hen Bream. Between them the pair counted for 21 points.

With H. Bream and Gelbert scoring freely, the gas men slowly forged into the lead and at half time led 17-14.

Sew Up Tilt
Early in the second half the Fleet-Wing dribblers secured a big lead and at one time led 31-20. In the waning minutes of the game the locals eased up a bit and the final score read, 33-30. Shaw was the high scorer of the evening with 15 points.

The entire Fleet-Wing squad played a good game with the playing of the Cardinal star and Hen Bream dominating. The team worked smoothly after a poor start and showed great improvement over other exhibitions.

St. Mary's of York will be the next opponents of the Fleet-Wing team. They hold the only victory scored over the locals. The game will be played on the hotel floor Friday night.

Scientist To Be Honored

Madison, Wis. (AP)—The memory of Dr. Stephen M. Babcock, Wisconsin scientist and inventor of the butyric test, will be honored by the planting of butterfly gardens in at least 44 states.

Seed for these gardens, to be planted on grounds of agricultural colleges and experiment stations, was gathered by Dr. Babcock from the back yard of Dr. Babcock.

A butterfly garden is being planted at the University of Wisconsin, where Dr. Babcock resided, which the scientist also attended.

CO-EDS TO SHOOT WITH MEN

Norman, Okla. (AP)—University of Oklahoma co-eds are going to shoot it out with the men. The women's rifle team of the university will meet the sharpshooters of Kemper military school, Burnsville, Missouri, in February.

Of its operation, the hospital had over 300 admissions, and of that number more than 200 have been discharged and sent back to their homes, very much benefited—some even beyond the hopes of the physicians and surgeons when they were admitted. Many have been returned to almost normal physical condition."

Benjamin Franklin was Philadelphia's postmaster in 1737.

Cashtown Wins Cage Tilt, 35-31

The Cashtown Independents rung up another victory Tuesday night when they defeated the snappy York Springs quintet at York Springs in a hotly contested game, 35-31. The game required an extra period.

Kuhn and Rebert played strong offensive games for the victors, the former caging eight goals. Weaver led the attack for York Springs with seven double-deckers while Kemper stood out on the defense.

MAROONS FACE LANCASTER FIVE

Red Tornado Dribblers Battle Martin-Coached Cagers Here This Evening.

One of the strongest teams in the central Pennsylvania inter-scholastic league will make its appearance here tonight when Dick Madison's Lancaster high passers clash with Gettysburg high on the local court.

Lancaster is deadlocked with Steelton for first place, each team having won its first two games of league competition. The Red Tornado has defeated John Harris and York, both conquerors of Gettysburg.

Coach Eugene Martin has given his lads the stiffest workouts of the season. Every effort has been made to correct the faults of the Maroons and the first league victory is hoped for.

Victim Last Year
The only league victory scored by the Maroons last year was over Lancaster high and the locals are hoping to make the visitors their first league victim again this season.

The lineup will be intact with one exception. Either King or Trostle will jump center but at present which one will start is not known. Both have been staging a stiff battle for the regular berth and each will see action. Rupp and Smith at forwards, and Shealer and Plank at guards will complete the starting team.

Coach Charles Taylor's Avondale vocational school dribblers will oppose the Maroon and White scrubs in the preliminary game in what promises to be a stiff tilt.

On Friday night the Maroons will play Steelton high at Steelton. The scrub teams will also play.

Championships Common Here

Columbus, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio State university basketball team is affiliated with a "championship complex."

Four of the varsity players come from Stivers high school in Dayton, the championship quintet for three years, and hardly know how to conduct themselves playing on a squad where a championship is a nebulous matter.

Baudette, Minnesota, will be linked with Rainy River, Ontario by a new international toll bridge over Rainy River.

PREP PASSERS BEAT YORK FIVE

Academy Quintet Opens Season With 18 To 15 Victory.

Gettysburg academy's basketball team opened its season in a promising manner Tuesday night when they invaded York to defeat the strong Thompson's business school quintet, 18-15.

Coach Zeigler's team displayed much ability and should develop into a classy aggregation. The close guarding of both teams kept the score close and the outcome always in doubt.

Hileman, with nine points, led the assault for Gettysburg while the entire York county school shared evenly in the scoring.

The next game for the Orange and Blue passers will be with the strong Malvern prep quintet here on Saturday.

Kansas Champ Fears Rivals In Big 6 Race

Kansas City (AP)—Dr. E. G. (Phog) Allen, dean of midwestern basketball coaches, nominates his own champion Kansas university Jayhawkers, Kansas State and Iowa State as the chief contenders for the 1932 Big Six conference basketball title.

He looks for trouble from other sources, chiefly Missouri, but his prophecy regarding the neighbor Aggies approached realization in the two pre-season exhibition games played between the Jayhawkers and Kansas State.

The university team won each game by a margin of two points, while the Aggie star, center, Henry Cronkite, was absent due to injuries sustained in a charity football game.

Cronkite and the other two big stars of the Aggie football squad now playing basketball—Ralph Grahm, sophomore, and Elden Auker, veteran captain—are feared particularly by Allen because of their unusual stature and power.

To back them up Coach Charles Corsaut of Kansas State has several additional letter men.

Corsaut prophesied his Wildcats would lose most of their earlier games, but that they would give any team "an interesting evening" by the time the conference race opens January 8 and 9.

Allen is looking to the sophomore ranks to fill out a squad built around three veterans—Ted O'Leary, forward; Lee Page, guard; and Bill Johnson, elongated center.

Coach Louis E. Menze of Iowa State has four veterans at work and a fifth will report for the second semester. Heading the squad is "Little Lightning" Jack Roadcap, leading scorer of the conference when the Cyclones finished fifth last season, now at guard.

To Teach Value Of Nature Study

Conservation of natural resources including forests, streams, scenery, game animals and birds will be made a part of the future education of the youth of the state. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, today announced that his department is preparing a course of study in science for the schools of the state in which special stress is laid upon the duty of the public to provide food for game life, the importance of hunting strictly within the law and the elements of true sportsmanship. At the present time, Pennsylvania is one of the foremost states in the union in its care of wild life. That the schools are guiding the thinking of the young people in this direction will do much, it is believed, toward assuring the continuation and development of a type of education all too little emphasized in the past, it is believed.

West Point was first occupied as a military post January 20, 1778.

DEMOCRATS CHOOSE CHAIRMAN

Corporations Are Warned

Secretary of Revenue Clyde L. King calls to the attention of corporations who have changed their accounting year from a calendar year basis to a fiscal year basis just what the law requires of them.

Many corporations believe by such change they have authority under the laws of Pennsylvania to file their tax reports on the same basis, the secretary said. This is erroneous. The act of assembly provides that before a corporation can report and file its tax reports with the commonwealth on a fiscal year basis, it must first procure permission to do so from the secretary of revenue.

"Where such permission is not requested immediately after the change of the accounting year, the department of revenue has no alternative other than to demand that a report for the year in which the change was made be filed on a calendar year basis," Secretary King declared.

Penalty Added
"Corporations believing they can use fiscal year figures without asking the authority of the secretary of revenue, wait until the close of their fiscal year, which in most cases brings them beyond the statutory period for filing tax reports under the calendar year basis. This means the department of revenue must assess a penalty, and under the law there is no way by which it can be avoided."

"If a corporation has changed its tax year during the last calendar year it should at once file with the department of revenue the necessary forms for reporting on a fiscal year basis, so that the department may not be compelled to enforce the penalty provisions as provided by law."

MONEY SMUGGLING BECOMES FINE ART

ON SPAIN'S BORDER

San Sebastian, Spain (AP)—Carmen, that alluring operative tobacco smuggler, could have wished for no better accomplices than those who today try to run cash out of Spain.

Since the republic forbade removal of more than 5,000 pesetas (about $500) at a time, customs guards along this border have struggled against new reaches of smuggling ingenuity.

Carrier pigeons have fluttered into the wrong hands, both legs padded with notes of high denomination. Customs guards have learned to look with suspicion upon the extra tires of automobiles.

PROFIT FROM LION KILL

Redding, Cal. (AP)—C. W. Laidshaw collected $180 from the state and $35 from the county here for four days' work. His job is to track down and kill predatory animals and in the four days he bagged seven mountain lions, a record kill for that length of time.

West Point was first occupied as a military post January 20, 1778.

ADAMS RAISES CUSTODY ORDER

Authorizes Surrender Of Accused Naval Men To Honolulu Circuit Court.

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Surrender of a naval officer and two enlisted men to the Honolulu circuit court for trial on a murder charge was authorized Tuesday night by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy.

This was announced by the navy department after a long series of repercussions in the capital from developments in crime-stirred Honolulu.

Rear-Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., requested the secretary to approve an understanding with Circuit Court Judge Christy that the prisoners—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two enlisted men—would be turned over to the circuit court when requested.

Held Aboard Naval Ship
The navy men, charged with the murder of a young Hawaiian accused with four other men of attacking Mrs. Massie, are being held aboard the receiving ship Albatross, at Pearl Harbor, where they were confined Friday after their arrest.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, also is under arrest. Earlier Tuesday, Secretary Adams said the navy was holding the men only for civil authorities, and that they would be turned over on demand. He added the department was to be notified first, however, so it could keep in touch with developments.

Meantime, Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, went on record as opposing a change of venue for the trial of the four Americans.

Secretary Wilbur, whose department handles insular affairs, asserted he was opposed to asking any change of venue in the case. His statement followed a conference with President Hoover. He said he discussed the Hawaiian situation generally with the president after the question had come up at the cabinet meeting Tuesday morning.

Reviews Advance In Fertilizer Use
Commercial fertilizer has been used by Pennsylvania farmers for more than seventy-five years, officials of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture said today in a review of recent changes in fertilizer regulations.

Mixed fertilizers, which include the principal plant food elements nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, have been purchased by farmers, since Civil war days, but throughout this period it has been customary to state the nitrogen contents in terms of ammonia equivalent.

The 1931 general assembly, however, amended the existing fertilizer law so that in the future the nitrogen contents will be stated in terms of nitrogen. The difference between ammonia and nitrogen is shown by the following comparisons: 1 per cent of nitrogen equals 1.22 per cent of ammonia; 2 per cent of nitrogen equals 2.43 per cent of ammonia; 3 per cent of nitrogen equals 3.65 per cent of ammonia; 4 per cent of nitrogen equals 4.88 per cent of ammonia, and 5 per cent of nitrogen equals 6.08 per cent of ammonia.

NOTRE DAME-TYPE TEAMS SEE WINNING GRID YEAR
South Bend, Ind. (AP)—The football season of 1931 in the "Notre Dame conference"—major schools coached by Notre Dame alumni—was a season of victories dimmed by losses.

The twenty leading schools coached by Notre Dame men won 107 games, the same number as last year. But there is a difference in the number of games lost. Defeats in 1931 total 70, a dozen more than last year. There were 11 ties this year, eight less than last year.

Two Congressmen in State Clash
Over Clearing Site for Postoffice

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP).—Around a government building project at Clearfield grew the first lines of battle between two republican members of congress who have been thrown together in the same district by Pennsylvania's redistricting law.

It started with a complaint by Representative Kurtz, of Altoona, to the treasury against what he had been advised was the employment of outside labor in razing a site for a new postoffice at Clearfield.

Clearfield now is a part of the district served by Representative Chase, of that town. Together with other territory it will be added to a part of Kurtz's present district in which he resides.

Kurtz made the complaint to the treasury at the request of Arthur V. Cowdrick, the Clearfield county treasurer, who wrote to the Altoona representative saying Clearfield "is now in" his district.

Visibly irritated by Kurtz's action, Chase said he had received a guarantee from the Clearfield contractor several weeks ago that "nothing but local labor" would be used.

He charged Cowdrick with attempting to "get jobs for some of his political hangers-on."

Chase, moreover, said he had made arrangements with the contractor whereby the most needy of the community would be sought out through the assistance of welfare agencies for work on the project.

Both Chase and Kurtz are candidates for renomination and re-election.

BONES HINT AT NEW MURDERS

Police Suspect Confessed Kidnapper-Slayer Of Other Crimes.

Cincinnati, Jan. 13 (AP).—Special investigators late Tuesday dug up bones from the earthen floor of the dank, gloomy tenement-house cellar where last month 6-year-old Marian McLean was assaulted and left to die by Charles Bischoff, 45, bespectacled and eccentric cobbler.

They were turned over the Sheriff Butterfield, who left immediately for Cleveland to submit them to experts to determine whether they are human.

County Prosecutor Gorman, who ordered the cellar excavated, said the discovery strengthened his belief that the shoemaker might be responsible for the unsolved disappearance of two children twelve years ago.

The bones were found less than an hour after the grand jury indicted Bischoff for first-degree murder on two counts, both of which are punishable by death sentences.

Bischoff, who confessed after nearly three weeks of continuous grilling, will be brought speedily to trial, the prosecutor said.

Search for possible evidence of other murders by Bischoff was begun Monday by Willis Walker, an expert on Indian mound excavations. The bones were found after twenty-four hours of digging.

Police records show that two girls—Freda Hornberger, 9, and Emily Gump, 9—were kidnapped in 1919 and 1921 and have not been found since.

The confessed slayer will be brought into court today to determine if he wishes to hire counsel or have the court appoint an attorney for him. Elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent any disturbances in the court room.

AMUSEMENTS

Majestic
"Possessed," Joan Crawford's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which will be the attraction at the Majestic Theater, Thursday and Friday is an adaptation of the successful Edgar Selwyn play, "The Mirage." Clark Gable, who last scored opposite Greta Garbo in "Susan Lennox," has the leading male role.

The heroine of "Possessed," made famous by Florence Reed in the stage version, gives Miss Crawford a wide range of acting opportunities. She is seen as a factory worker who cannot reconcile herself to the poverty and drab existence of her class. Instead, she makes the most of her charm by going to New York, where she becomes intimate with Gable in the role of a young millionaire with political ambitions.

The love of Gable for Miss Crawford becomes a stumbling block when he aspires to become governor of his state. To render him free to execute a successful campaign, she consents to an engagement with a boy from her home town whom she does not love. But when at the nominating convention her name is made the butt of hecking propaganda Miss Crawford resorts to more drastic measures, which results in a dramatic denouement of interesting consequences.

CITE INCREASE IN DRY ARRESTS

Amos W. Woodcock, Director
Of Prohibition, Adds 500
To Force.

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP).—Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, said 38,018 arrests for prohibition violations were made in the last six months of 1931 as compared with 31,082 for the same period in 1930.

With the beginning of the new fiscal year last July 1, about 500 prohibition agents were added to the federal force.

Pointing to an increase of almost 400 in the number of cases made last December, compared with the preceding month of November, the director emphasized that there was an increase of more than 200 cases involving automobile seizures, and of about ninety cases of seized stills.

"We take comfort in that," he said. "It would seem to show that our order against buying liquor except under advance permission has had its effect in forcing the agents back to the source of supplies for material with which to make a showing."

"It's a lot easier, of course, to go and buy a drink and make an arrest in a speakeasy than to chase a liquor auto or find a still on a bleak hill."

Fewer Acquittals
Woodcock said fines collected on federal prohibition cases during the last half of 1931 totaled $3174,991 and in state cases, $703,308. He reported a decrease from 674 to 601 for cases acquitted, and another from 1466 to 1279 in cases not pressed. The director said he believed this indicated that cases "are being made better."

The average sentence imposed in 18,445 cases were 198.9 days, compared with 229.6 days in 12,414 cases in 1930, he said. A total of 3410 permanent injunctions against speakeasies were issued for the 1931 period, he said, compared with 2356 for 1930.

YOUTH KILLS HIS FATHER

St. Thomas Bay, 18, Sends Shot Into His Body; Once
Stabbed A Chum.

Chambersburg, Jan. 13 (AP).—Merle Stevens, 18, shot and fatally wounded his father, Lewis Stevens, 50, near their home in St. Thomas late Tuesday.

The youth then shot himself in the chest and was brought to a hospital where physicians said he probably would recover.

The shootings, witnesses told police, followed the son's twitting his father about being thrown by a neighbor in a friendly wrestling match.

Merle told police he fired the shot when the father started toward him in a threatening manner. Witnesses said, however, the father made no move toward the son.

Immediately after he shot his father, Merle ran into a nearby house, seized a revolver and sent a bullet into his own body.

Several months ago, Merle was paroled after he pleaded guilty to stabbing another youth.

The father and son had gone to a vacant lot near their home with several neighbors for target practice, with a rifle late Tuesday afternoon.

After shooting at a mark for some time, some of the men started to wrestle.

Lewis Stevens was brought to a hospital here where he died within an hour.

Coal mines through an explosion of 30al.

Deputy Secretary Thomas said that these results were attained through efforts of state mine inspectors, mining operators, and nine employees to place mine safety above every other consideration.

"Practically every dry and dusty gaseous mine in the bituminous region," he said, "is now protected from the explosion hazard through rock dusting."

Mining Fatalities
Hit New Low

The best safety record in the history of Pennsylvania's bituminous mines was established during the past year, John Ira Thomas, deputy secretary of mines in charge of the bituminous division, said today.

"In the production of approximately 100,000,000 tons of coal, 204 men lost their lives," said Thomas. "This means production of 480,000 tons of bituminous coal per fatality, as compared with an average production of 307,000 tons per fatality since the enactment of the bituminous mining law in 1877."

Lowest in Years
The number of fatalities, he explained, is the lowest in any year since 1898, when the state had an annual production of only 64,000,000 tons of bituminous coal.

Another striking feature of the safety record set during 1931, it was said, is the fact that during the year not a life was lost in the soft

Food Tests Prove Complaints Untrue

Complaints that the contractors' commissary was serving impure food in the mess hall to the workmen employed on the construction of the new Pymatuning dam in Crawford county, were found to be untrue, according to a report made to Lewis E. Staley, chairman of the Pennsylvania water and power resources board.

The investigation, made by a special agent attached to the bureau of foods and chemistry in the department of agriculture, was in response to rumors that impure foods, especially meats, were being brought into the camp from Ohio. The quality of the food served the workmen was found to be entirely satisfactory and the commissary was given a clean bill of health.

Pymatuning reservoir will be the largest artificial lake in Pennsylvania, with an acreage of more than 16,400 acres. The dam, which is being built by the commonwealth, with flood Pymatuning swamp, an extensive morass, located about 40 miles south of Lake Erie. Construction was begun October 6, when Governor Pinchot broke the first ground. The time limit for completion of the dam is June 1, 1933.

CHARITY TENNIS MATCH
Springfield, Mo., (AP). — Unusually warm winter weather led to the scheduling of a charity tennis match here for New Year's day. Dr. U. J. Busiek and Garret Hogg, city doubles champions, were paired against W. O. Cralle and Paul Frederiek.

A majority of mounts used by the Pony express were half-breed California mustangs.

Suppose You Leave No Will

The Law would distribute your estate. Perhaps not as you would have wished. Someone might suffer. Perhaps your Wife.

Avoid This By

Making a Will and appointing The Gettysburg National Bank your Executor and Trustee.
